More Vaccine Ordered For Polio 'Shots'

4,500 Inoculated In District; Clinics Slated Saturday

Columbiana County's response to the Medical Society's Sabin oral polio vaccine program was so enthusiastic Wednesday that 16,000 more doses have been ordered to complete the inoculation of a majority of residents "from 2 months to 100 years."

Some 4,500 received the vaccine yesterday in four area clinics of the 11 held in the county and Dr. Alex Fisher, co-chairman for the southern part of the county, said the society expects original order of 55,000 "shots" will have been exhausted by Saturday, requiring the re-order.

Clinics were held for adults and children yesterday afternoon at Westgate School and East Junior High School, at MacDonald School in Wellsville, at the Calcutta fire hall and at Salineville.

He estimated 1,509 were treated at Westgate, 864 at East High, 924 at Calcutta, 900 at Wellsville and 200 at Salineville despite the rainy weather.

Children in Wellsville and Salineville also received dosage yesterday and the program was continuing today in East Liverpool schools.

It will go on Friday until all buildings have been visited by teams of physicians of the county society, nurses, pharmacists and many women volunteers aiding in the program.

Some 2,300 children in the Beaver Local School system were to receive their "shots" today and tomorrow.

The mass clinics will be held again Saturday at the same hours — 1 to 7 p. m. — when the society expects it may have

2 Resign Council Posts In Chester

Chester Councilmen Donald Hissam and Harry Davis resigned Wednesday night because of disqualification as non-freeholders when elected in 1960. But they announced they would still seek re-nomination in the city's primary April 3.

Hissam, Third Ward councilman, and Davis, Fourth Ward, tendered their resignations following an opinion read by City Solicitor Ruth Cox Turner summarizing the legal aspects of qualification issue.

MRS. TURNER said the two councilmen are ineligible to continue to hold office, because of the recently interpreted ruling requiring councilmen to own property.

Both Hissam and Davis were not "freeholders" or property owners when elected in 1960, although, Mrs. Turner said, "I am informed the present councilmen now have deeds to property in Chester, but to my knowledge the deeds are not recorded and said deeds were made subsequent to the question of qualifications for office..."

The solicitor said all ordinances approved by Council while Hissam and Davis served are valid, because the pair served as "defacto officers" — exercising legal duties although their holding of the office was a defect and unknown.

MRS. TURNER said if Hissam and Davis now hold title to property, they could be appointed by Council to their previous office.

However, Hissam and Davis both said they do not wish to be candidates for re-appointment. Hissam said, "I want the people to elect me."

Hissam said he did not know in 1960 he had to be a free-holder. He said, "I was elected by a large majority, and when I took my seat the city was $13,000 in debt and is debt-free today."

"I don't think I have done anything wrong," he declared, adding he wanted to thank "all concerned." Davis said, "That goes for me too."

—:—

MRS. TURNER said the two councilmen "are innocent due to an incorrect ruling, and didn't know they had to be free-holders." She said she believes both "are suffering." Davis commented, "I'm not suffering at $120 a year salary."

Mayor Ray Collins commended the two for their work in Council. Councilman W. F. Bishop moved "with regret" to accept

A-Test Deadlock Deepens

Small Nations At Geneva Conference Stage Revolt

GENEVA (AP) — Frustrated small nations revolted briefly today against the big power stalemate at the Geneva disarmament conference and served notice they intend to take a hand in trying to break the deadlock.

However, the deadlock deepened because the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union failed completely to find any basis on which they could agree to negotiate for a nuclear weapons test ban treaty.

There was a two-hour and 40-minute meeting of delegations of the three atomic powers this afternoon to discuss a test ban.

Sir Michael Wright of Britain then told reporters, "We shall report (to the 17-nation conference) that we have reached no agreement."

Soviet Delegate Semyon Tsarapkin said: "We have reached a complete stalemate. We have found it impossible to agree."

A formal session of the full conference had produced the brief but potentially significant revolt of the small nations. Sparked by a move by British Foreign Secretary Lord Home, it seemed to be directed chiefly against Russia, which the smaller Western Allies particularly consider responsible for the stalemate.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are cochairmen of the conference, with responsibility for planning its work.

Manuel Tello of Mexico, the presiding officer, announced this morning the cochairmen had failed to agree on how to organize the work and suggested that there be no meeting of the 17 this afternoon. In effect they were asking more time to dicker.

At that point, informants later reported, Lord Home said sharply "Let's get on with it." This bid for an afternoon meeting, contrary to the recommendation of

U.S., Soviet Set Talks On Space Plans

Discussions Will Open Tuesday To Arrange Projects

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., (AP) —The United States and the Soviet Union begin detailed discussions Tuesday on how they can work together in developing a series of far-reaching outer space projects.

The talks were arranged at an informal meeting of high level experts of the two countries following an exchange of friendly letters between President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev.

U.N. diplomats were elated over the apparent willingness of the two super powers to take steps toward cooperation on space projects.

Khrushchev, in replying to a proposal by the President for space cooperation, said the time was ripe to go ahead in several fields.

The Soviet Premier mentioned satellites for weather forecasting and long-range communications, mapping of the earth's magnetic fields, space law and medicine, and the organization of search and rescue for astronauts who make accidental landings.

But Khrushchev said that an agreement would have to be reached on disarmament before the two nations can go far on joint travel to the planets.

Kennedy told his news conference in Washington Wednesday that he welcomed Khrushchev's offer and expressed hope that the basis has been laid for practical cooperation in the exploration of space.

Hugh L. Dryden, deputy director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Soviet space expert Anatoly A. Blagonravov will open the exploratory talks in New York next week.

Superior Court Acts

Midland's 'Job' Tax Held Invalid

Pennsylvania Superior Court has ruled against Midland's $10-a-year occupation tax on residents and non-residents but both may end up paying more if the borough enacts an earned income tax which now is likely.

The court, sitting in Philadelphia, announced today that it has reversed the order of Beaver County Judge Robert E. McCreary, who last June dismissed complaints of five employes of the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. They are non-residents and protested the tax.

THE SUPERIOR Court has turned the case back to the Beaver County Courts for an entry of an appropriate decree.

Since the opinion has just been given, neither Atty. R. Clifton Hood of Beaver, counsel for the five whose appeal was heard last November in Pittsburgh by the Superior Court, nor Atty. Robert Masters, Midland solicitor, have had a chance to read it.

It is assumed that the court opinion means the tax cannot be levied on non-residents as protested by John Guernsey and Mike Feraci, both of Brighton Township, James C. Britton of West Mayfield, John G. Flasco of Ohioville Borough and Gerald Houck of Beaver, who appealed.

THE BOROUGH collected the tax in 1961 and may have to make refunds. It was withheld by employers voluntarily. At the time the tax was levied, February 1961, Crucible employes were estimated to number 4,300 of which only 980 resided in Midland. The employe rate is up since then, it is said.

Midland Council contended the tax was necessary due to the extra cost in providing borough services such as police protection, parking, etc., and 80 per cent of those working in Midland, but residing elsewhere, receive all the benefits for which they paid nothing.

MAYOR ELI Corak said the borough will now have to study its tax structure carefully to see what source can now be taxed. He said industry pays 75 per cent of the borough's taxes and Council is unwilling to increase their taxes by a real estate millage increase.

An earned income tax likely will be the alternate. It's reported that an income tax would be much higher on industrial employes than the flat $10-a-year occupation tax.

An income tax would also provide a greater revenue for the borough since 10 per cent can be retained even from those residing in other municipalities which have an income tax rate.

—:—

MIDLAND can keep taxes from those out of state since Pennsylvania does not have a reciprocal agreement with Ohio or West Virginia.

According to the 1961 audit recently received by the borough, $70,586.72 was collected last year by the occupation tax.

Patrolman Furgason To Leave Police Post

Patrolman Edwin R. Furgason, a member of the police force nearly four years, has submitted his resignation to Safety - Service Director Robert Owen and Chief Americo Radeschi, explaining he hopes to find employment in Florida and make his home there.

Officer Furgason's last day of duty will be Friday. Then he will start a two-week vacation, with the resignation taking effect April 6. He resides in Highland Colony. He joined the force May 8, 1958.

In his letter of resignation, the officer said he could see no future in his present position because of the city's perennially bad financial condition. Owen said the administration regrets the resignation because Furgason "has been a good policeman and a credit to the department."

Sheriff Sees Link With Other Recent Holdups In County

LISBON — Deputy sheriffs today were sifting auto license registrations in an effort to trace a 1953 blue Oldsmobile used in an armed robbery of the Ferguson Market on Route 7 near Columbiana Wednesday night by a man who may be linked to recent holdups in the East Palestine area.

About $55 was taken from Al Ferguson, market owner, at 8:14 p. m., according to Sheriff Russell VanFossan, who said the gunman fits the description of a man who held up Johnston's Clothing store at East Palestine and the Casa Loma Club of Route 14.

Ferguson told Deputy Herman Wellman the man — about 30, 6 feet tall, weighing about 180 and with black wavy hair — came in and made a purchase which Ferguson placed in a sack.

Ferguson turned around and sat down, but the man remained standing, leaving the sack on the counter by the cash register.

The man then called Ferguson back to the counter, showing a small silver - colored revolver, Ferguson said, and ordered him to put the money in the cash register into the sack.

As the man was leaving, a car came into the market with two youths in it. Ferguson told the youths to get the name of the blue car as the bandit drove away, and although the boys obtained a reading of the plate, their reading was apparently incorrect, because the plate number did not

'Not Guilty' Plea Seen Retaliation On Officer

A frequent offender on intoxication charges who entered an unusual not guilty plea did it with the intention of retaliating against the night-turn officer who arrested him, Patrolman Charles A. Winters declared today to Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

The defendant was William Fisher, who entered a not guilty plea Wednesday morning and won a continuance until today for a trial in which Patrolman Charles E. (Bill) Tice was to testify. He switched his plea to guilty today. Officer Winters told the court Fisher entered the not guilty plea to force Officer Tice to appear in court, rather than going home to bed at the end of the turn.

"That thought never entered my head," Fisher said. Judge Chertoff sentenced him to the County Jail in default of a fine of $100 and costs.

Jury Saves Wife Slayer From Chair

Lesser Charge Has 1-20 Year Term; Parole Is Possible

By GLENN WAIGHT

"I feel like I want to cry," William P. Boyd Jr. happily told his attorneys late Wednesday afternoon after the threat of death in the electric chair was ended by a Common Pleas Court jury which convicted him of manslaughter in the slaying of his wife, Nancy Lee Boyd.

The panel of 10 women and two men spent only 2½ hours deliberating the verdict in the first degree murder charge against Boyd, 23, who admitted hurling an auto jack at his estranged wife near Beaver Creek Nov. 5, then shooting her as she lay unconscious.

Sentencing Next Week

Judge Raymond S. Buzzard was expected to sentence Boyd sometime next week—as the defendant has a three-day period in which he may file for a new trial, an unlikely move.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw had sought a first degree murder conviction without recommendation for mercy — a mandatory death penalty. The defense had asked for the manslaughter verdict or acquittal.

However, the jury had the choice of five verdicts in the case: guilty of first degree murder with or without a recommendation of mercy, guilty of second degree murder, guilty of first degree manslaughter or not guilty.

Manslaughter carries a penalty of 1-20 years in the penitentiary, with eligibility for parole after a year.

The panel returned the verdict at 5:40 p. m., having begun deliberations at 2:31 yesterday afternoon.

Clarification Requested

At 3:45 a note was sent out by the jury, asking Judge Buzzard to "clarify the five charges."

Edward Taylor, 610 John St., who was selected foreman of the panel, explained to Judge Buzzard when the jury returned to the courtroom there was a question concerning first and second degree murder elements.

The judge re-read the appropriate section of the charge he had delivered earlier in the afternoon, and the jury again retired to the jury room to resume deliberations at 4:12.

The jury verdict meant that Boyd of Pennsylvania Ave. was guilty of "unlawfully" taking a life.

Manslaughter can be involuntary — intentional killing without malice, such as in violent or intense emotion, rage, or anger, under adequate provocation.

Voluntary Phase

Manslaughter can also be voluntary — killing while doing an unlawful act, and Judge Buzzard in his charge pointed out it is un-

City Will Use Salt Solution To Halt Dust

Discontinuing the annual oiling program for unimproved streets, the city will substitute a liquid calcium chloride solution "that does the same job without creating a mess," Councilman S. James Welch told his Third Ward constitutents Wednesday night in a meeting at City Hall.

The new program was explained by Welch and Safety - Service Director Robert Owen to a crowd of 20 that attended a session in the Council Chamber to talk over street improvements.

Welch said the decision already has been made to discontinue the citywide street oiling, which has been undertaken virtually every year since 1958. He said city officials are convinced use of the calcium chloride solution will do a better job at a lower cost and without the mess created by the oil.

The city already has ordered two railroad tankcar loads of the solution from the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., the supplier. It will be

Lesser Charge Has 1-20 Year Term; Parole Is Possible

By GLENN WAIGHT

"I feel like I want to cry," William P. Boyd Jr. happily told his attorneys late Wednesday afternoon after the threat of death in the electric chair was ended by a Common Pleas Court jury which convicted him of manslaughter in the slaying of his wife, Nancy Lee Boyd.

The panel of 10 women and two men spent only 2½ hours deliberating the verdict in the first degree murder charge against Boyd, 23, who admitted hurling an auto jack at his estranged wife near Beaver Creek Nov. 5, then shooting her as she lay unconscious.

Sentencing Next Week

Judge Raymond S. Buzzard was expected to sentence Boyd sometime next week—as the defendant has a three-day period in which he may file for a new trial, an unlikely move.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw had sought a first degree murder conviction without recommendation for mercy — a mandatory death penalty. The defense had asked for the manslaughter verdict or acquittal.

However, the jury had the choice of five verdicts in the case: guilty of first degree murder with or without a recommendation of mercy, guilty of second degree murder, guilty of first degree manslaughter or not guilty.

Manslaughter carries a penalty of 1-20 years in the penitentiary, with eligibility for parole after a year.

The panel returned the verdict at 5:40 p. m., having begun deliberations at 2:31 yesterday afternoon.

Clarification Requested

At 3:45 a note was sent out by the jury, asking Judge Buzzard to "clarify the five charges."

Edward Taylor, 610 John St., who was selected foreman of the panel, explained to Judge Buzzard when the jury returned to the courtroom there was a question concerning first and second degree murder elements.

The judge re-read the appropriate section of the charge he had delivered earlier in the afternoon, and the jury again retired to the jury room to resume deliberations at 4:12.

The jury verdict meant that Boyd of Pennsylvania Ave. was guilty of "unlawfully" taking a life.

Manslaughter can be involuntary — intentional killing without malice, such as in violent or intense emotion, rage, or anger, under adequate provocation.

Voluntary Phase

Manslaughter can also be voluntary — killing while doing an unlawful act, and Judge Buzzard in his charge pointed out it is un-

City Will Use Salt Solution To Halt Dust

Discontinuing the annual oiling program for unimproved streets, the city will substitute a liquid calcium chloride solution "that does the same job without creating a mess," Councilman S. James Welch told his Third Ward constitutents Wednesday night in a meeting at City Hall.

The new program was explained by Welch and Safety - Service Director Robert Owen to a crowd of 20 that attended a session in the Council Chamber to talk over street improvements.

Welch said the decision already has been made to discontinue the citywide street oiling, which has been undertaken virtually every year since 1958. He said city officials are convinced use of the calcium chloride solution will do a better job at a lower cost and without the mess created by the oil.

The city already has ordered two railroad tankcar loads of the solution from the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., the supplier. It will be

Says Meaning Distorted By Ike

Freeman Gives Clue Why He Seldom Uses 'Parity'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has given a possible clue as to why he seoldom uses the word "parity," once the rallying cry of farm groups.

He told a convention of the National Farmers Union at Denver Wednesday night that parity is a perfectly good word, but that its meaning had been distorted and weakened by the Eisenhower administration.

Freeman chose to use the phrase "income on a par" with other groups for expressing the goal of Kennedy administration farm policies.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reports the market for beef cattle for feeding and grazing is beginning to perk up with the arrival of the spring season.

A livestock market report said such factors as the approach of a new grass season, ample supplies of feed grains and fairly high price levels for slaughter cattle were generating demand for feeder stock. However, heavy snows and high winds in many cattle producing areas hindered movement of animals to feeding areas.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Omaha, Neb., was the nation's top cattle market last year. South St. Paul, Minn., was first for calves, the St. Louis National Stock Yards was tops for hogs and Denver was first for sheep and lambs.

Chicago, once a top livestock market, was No. 2 for cattle, 38th for calves, 5th for hogs and 11th for sheep and lambs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have signed Agriculture Department agreements to retire 10 per cent of the average acreage of land used in 1959-60 to grow barley. The retirement is designed to help reduce surpluses of feed grains.

The amount signed up for retirement through March 8 was 1,653,000 acres from the 16,054,000 acres used in the 1959-60 period. The government will make payments totaling about $25 million on the idled land.

Trucker Gets Fine Of $300, 10-Day Term

A Hancock County man who admitted today in Municipal Court he paid only a third of a fine imposed on him more than two years ago in a similar case drew a $300 penalty and a 10-day term in City Jail on a drunken driving charge from Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

Floyd Lewis Myers, 51, of Chester R. D. 1 was arrested at 6:14 p. m. Wednesday while driving erratically along the River Rd. in a truck laden with lumber, Patrolman Paul Blevins told the judge.

Stuying the police department's record on Myers, the judge noted he was fined $300 on a drunken driving charge in 1959. Myers admitted he had paid only "about $100" on the old fine.

Judge Chertoff also took away Myers' West Virginia driver's license and said he will send it to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in Charleston, along with a request that it be suspended. He explained to Myers that an Ohio court cannot suspend an operator's permit from another state.

"You're not fit to drive an auto," the judge told Myers. "One of these days you're going to kill someone."

Officer Blevins told the court he halted the truck after he noted it was "weaving from side to side" on the River Rd. He said he found Myers' speech was slurred and he staggered when he walked.

Police said Myers gave a statement in which he said he consumed five beers between 2 and 6 p. m. in a Mulberry St. tavern. He said he started from a Klondyke lumber yard with his cargo about noon.

Myers told the judge this morning he had "two and a half drinks." He said he did not recall driving the truck or talking with the policeman. He pleaded guilty.

In a traffic case Wednesday afternoon, Bobby W. Byers of Echo Dr. was given a suspended $10 fine when he pleaded guilty to failure to apply for registration for a motor vehicle. He was ordered to pay the $7.50 costs. Byers was cited by the State Highway Patrol Tuesday night on County Rd. 424.

European Worker Strike Halts Activity In Algiers

ALGIERS (AP) — A general strike by European workers demonstrating their resistance to Algerian independence shut down practically all activity in Algiers today.

Railroad service, plane traffic and city transportation halted. Water, gas and electric supplies were cut. Garages and filling stations refused to sell gasoline. Shops closed at noon when the order for the strike was issued. No time limit was set on the walkout.

Employes at the air terminal grounded traffic by demanding that passengers produce passes from the European Secret Army Organization, which is fighting to keep Algeria French.

Labor unions gave the strike order in protest against the arrest Wednesday night of the secretary general of the Railway Union Federation. But the movement appeared to be part of the secret army campaign to paralyze economic activity.

Business conditions were just beginning to return to normal after a one-day general strike Monday protesting the cease-fire between the French army and the Algerian nationalists, which went into effect that day.

A secret army broadcast in Oran called for a two-hour strike there tonight also.

The strike movement developed as the French army and police appeared to be putting up firm opposition to the European extremists seeking to wreck the cease-fire.

The secret army gave an ultimatum to government forces to clear out of Bab el Oued, a workers quarter in Algiers where trouble is frequent, by noon or be considered as occupation troops. But the government forces stayed put.

French gendarmes and secret army commandos battled openly for two hours in Oran Wednesday.

Throughout Wednesday night Europeans fired from balconies and windows on French army patrols cruising Algiers' deserted streets. Terrorist attacks accounted for two Moslems dead and four wounded.

In contrast with the bloodshed between Europeans there was calm throughout Algeria between French army forces and the Algerian nationalists. French headquarters said leaders of the Nationalist Liberation Front in a number of areas had offered their cooperation.

For the most part, however, the secret army terrorists roamed unchecked. Officials reported at least 30 persons killed—27 of them Moslems—and 58 wounded in 30 terrorist attacks across Algeria Wednesday, the second full day of the cease-fire between French forces and the Algerian Nationalists.

President Charles de Gaulle's government rushed two companies of riot troops from France to Corsica, apparently to forestall any attempt by the secret army to seize that Mediterranean island between southern France and Algeria. In the 1958 Algiers uprising that brought De Gaulle back to power, Corsica rallied to the Algiers insurgents.

Confused fighting broke out in three or four sections of Algiers shortly before midnight. French soldiers, wearing bulky bullet-proof vests, sent tracers streaking through the night sky in reply to sniper fire. Two Europeans were reported wounded and captured.

Several explosions, apparently plastic bombs, rocked the deserted streets of a largely Moslem district.

Earlier in the night secret army commandos, firing machine-gun bursts from a speeding car, raked Moslem cafes in Zeralda and Cheragas, west of Algiers, Killing 7 Moslems and wounding 28.

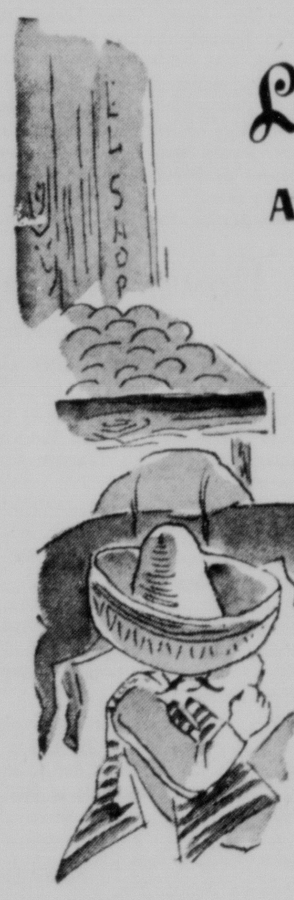

In Oran, a hotbed of European resistance to the cease-fire, settlers clashed openly with French gendarmes. The settlers claimed a victory even though 15 of their number were wounded against 5 policemen.

Feathers Flew Over Cuba

More feathers flew faster over the Cuban issue in the 1960 presidential campaign than were stirred up by any other pinpointed issue. They have been stirred up again by a mild statement of Allen C. Dulles, former CIA director, that Richard Nixon errs in a statement his opponent knew about preparations to invade Cuba before Mr. Kennedy called for an invasion in one of his campaign speeches.

It helps to review this ruckus feather by feather.

The first feather flew on Oct. 20, 1960, when candidate Kennedy unloaded blame for Cuba on candidate Nixon and said the United States should "attempt to strengthen the non-Batista democratic anti-Castro forces in exile and in Cuba itself who offer eventual hope of overthrowing Castro."

To clinch the proposition he said that "thus far these fighters for freedom have had virtually no support from our government."

In his book "Six Crises," Mr. Nixon says his rival knew this was what the United States was doing, though Mr. Dulles now believes Mr. Nixon misunderstood what Mr. Kennedy had been told as part of his campaign briefing by the CIA.

Be that as it may, Mr. Nixon certainly knew what the United States was doing. Yet, what did he have to say about Mr. Kennedy's proposal?

On Oct. 22 he called it the "most shockingly reckless proposal ever made in our history by a presidential candidate during a campaign." He said it violated U.S. commitments and was an invitation for the Soviet Union to intervene on the side of Fidel Castro. He said the result easily could be world war.

The feathers now were really flying.

The next day Mr. Kennedy accused Mr. Nixon of distortions and added this slur: "You have developed the technique of having your writers rewrite my statements, using these rewritten statements and attacking me for things I have never said or advocated. I never have advocated intervention in Cuba in violation of our treaty obligations."

Mr. Nixon thereupon fired back a telegram saying if Mr. Kennedy had stood by his original statement he only would have been "advocating the policy which the administration has been following for months" —the same policy Mr. Nixon said was "shockingly reckless" when it first was proposed by Mr. Kennedy.

Never did two political chickens defeather each other more disastrously—one by advocating something the other already was helping to put into effect, the other by denying the propriety of doing something already being done, then each reversing his position.

The moral: Foreign policy should not be discussed in political campaigns. You can't find the truth for the feathers.

Everybody Does Something About It

In her list of the factors that may be keeping business from booming hard enough to please the boomers, Sylvia Porter makes this significant inclusion:

The weather.

It's our impression that every year about this time deep-thinkers tee off on things keeping the economy from going into a springtime orbit and mention everything except the weather.

THEY PEER at interest rates, tell management to stick out its tongue and thump the chest of the politicians. They study the gross national product, the adjusted, double-reciprocating index of consumer prices as reported from a selected list of major cities and the up-to-date totals of bank clearings.

Then they purse their lips and compose bumbling think-pieces about the failure of these and other manifestations of what is going on in the business world to measure up to their high expectations. It's all very profound and sometimes utterly silly.

Only a year ago, for example, they were doing this against a background of snow piled high from some of the most ferocious storms in the history of the eastern half of the United States.

Today they are doing it against the certainty that the winter now coming to a close has been a ring-ding-dilly that has left millions limp and listless and in no mood to make economic prognosticators look good. Yet everybody reacts to weather.

The truth is, the prognosticators thought of everything but themselves when they were doing their prognosticating. Are they, too, feeling limp after a hard winter? Are they putting off key decisions about a new automobile, new furniture, repairs on the house and a business venture until their sinuses clear up?

ARE THEY STILL burdened by the ennui that never left them after they had the flu? Does it seem silly to think about making improvements when everything looks grimy, gray and gruesome? Are they too bushed to pour their money back into the life stream of the national economy?

If so, that's all they need to know to explain why the 1962 business boom is still not in orbit. Miss Porter must have looked into her own state of mind.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

President Kennedy demands law to keep people from getting sick over high cost of medicines designed to keep them healthy. Folks are feeling unnecessary pains and aches from medical expenses, and it's time Congress issued a prescription for their relief.

President's two-fisted message indicates that his own headaches have driven him to corner drugstore where he discovered man cannot afford pills even on White House salary.

He must be running a fever, since he includes iceboxes, installment interest, sedatives, food prices, stock market, labeling, packaging and TV sets among items which need congressional attention. The message covered everything except crab grass and golf balls.

But with all those big spending programs the public's chief worry is whether it can possibly have any money left for pills, even at half price, after taxes.

President says consumer is being taken for a ride in many fields outside medicine world and mentions kitchen equipment, food wrappings, cosmetics, vacuum cleaners and housepaints.

We know a fellow who had a breakdown trying to read and understand entire message of just how they all belonged in one big economy-sized presidential package under general label of public health.

We don't understand inclusion of cosmetics unless President is showing a natural reaction to use of make-up on TV shows. Sen. Kefauver has been probing drug prices for last several years without much White House support, but the President's action in rusihing onto the field from bench and grabbing ball may now mean business.

He says 90 per cent of doctors' prescriptions today are for drugs unknown 20 years ago, and he wants law to get them sold under simple common names at lower prices.

This is a pill-taking country and the upkeep of a medicine cabinet runs into money in any home. President also takes crack at installment-buying, interest rates. Maybe he thinks cost of medicine is getting so high there may have to be a time payment system for pills, powders and capsules.

NEW YORK WOMAN testified her husband, a judge, beat her up often. Threw the bench at her? But couldn't she have cried "I object"?

Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller based her divorce action on mental cruelty. Maybe it all goes back to governor's campaign in which she had to smile and eat blintzes and bagels.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy visisted the Taj Mahal. It is understood the building exclaimed "WOW!"

U.S. may permit shipment of $4 million in grain to Red China. (Is that enough money to guarantee sufficient abuse of us?)

Governor of New Jersey proposes higher estate taxes to help pay for storm wreckage. Damage to the dead and families through taxes has already been so extensive there can't be much left for anything else.

President says that where supermarkets carried only 1,500 items 20 years ago they now carry 6,000. And 5,000 always seem to be in the other alley.

Remember away back when fighters, signing for the heavyweight championship of world, seemed happy about it. Sonny Liston and Floyd Patterson wore funeral expressions of men signing for a trip over Niagara Falls in a plastic bucket. The money involved will run into millions, but they seemed as if they were agreeing to fight for permanent possession of a can of second-hand worms.

Posing for newspaper and TV photographers, they registered boredom, sorrow and despondency as they faced riches. Pictures should have had line below reading "Each man ate a hearty meal, said 'I am innocent' and expressed a hope for a last minute pardon."

Championship heavyweights have for a century signed with ear-to-ear smiles, lightness of spirit, gags and horseplay. They supplied color, entertainment and good clean fun, at no time suggesting by mood or word they had been rudely interrupted on the way to the mortuary chapel.

What's happened? Purses are bigger, fights are shorter, training camps are more de luxe and sidelines offer added money. But the boys seemed to be on verge of tears.

Could it be the lawyers, financial advisers, current managers, past managers and future managers which make them appear to be in tryout for role of grave diggers in a charity performance of Hamlet?

Lawyers outnumber photographers, indicating fighters need more protection in courts than in ring.

The word "escrow" is alone alarming. And there's no escaping the fact that fighters, no matter how big the purse, can always see shadow of income tax man in the gym, on the road and during bag punching and rope-skipping.

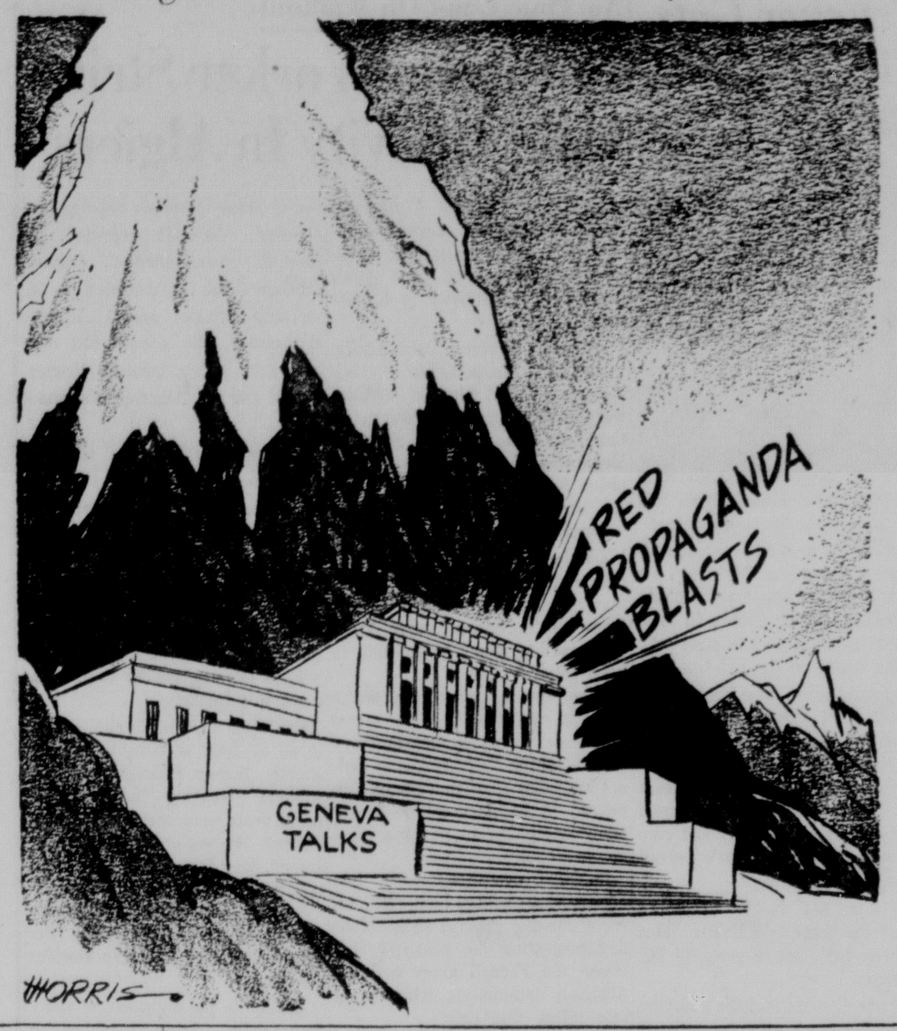

A heavyweight championship contestant might well say "I have trained hard, feel fine and am confident of victory in the bout. What worries me is how I will make out with the federal revenue department."

DICK RODGERS' solo musical, off to good notices, is called "No Strings," but it will need miles of stout cord to hold the bundles of money.

"No Strings" is an odd name, but he couldn't very well have named it "The STRING and I," without dragging in previous musical.

Truffles, small black fungii prizes by gourmets, are found by their aroma. Pigs, dogs and goats are employed in the hunting.

Right In The Avalanche Season, Too

GOP Pushes National Drive

By Victor Riesel

Now I am a veteran—though I didn't think I'd make it—of the great ground blizzard of '62. It seems as if it was only a few hours ago that we were mushing through the vast drifts and 50-mile winds towards Kearney, Neb. One of us came on a sign which said we were some 1,700 miles from New York and equally distant from San Francisco. We were standing in the center of the United States — geographically, not politically. We pushed on and discovered that some very energetic Republicans, including former Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton, were holding a political workshop there.

Victor Riesel

The blizzard disrupted it. But there will be another toward the end of the month. For this is part of the new and still unpublicized nationwide "MORE" drive —"MORE" standing for Mobilization of Republican Enterprise.

Nebraska has a Democratic governor and the GOP hopes to unseat him this fall with Fred Seaton, once mentioned as a presidential hopeful, as their candidate.

I am not here engaged in writing a local weather report or memo on regional politics. Kearney, Neb., is symptomatic. The Republicans there believe a conservative ground swell is sweeping across the land. The Kearney workshops are but two of those operating or scheduled in strategic areas.

ONE GROUND SWELL doesn't make a political season. But from what I saw and heard among the thousands of persons I spoke to of all ages there's a swing to the right—in the universities, in former liberal communities, among the rank and file workers.

Not a sharp swing. Not to the far right. Just plain old-fashioned conservatism. Virtually every community now has its little committees made up of doctors, lawyers and the new class of engineers—a swiftly growing social strata stretching across the land.

If you were to ask why, the answer would have to be, to each his own. The engineers don't want their defense jobs phased out. The rank and file don't want their factories closed.

The students are uncertain where anything is going. They aren't demanding that the Berlin wall be ripped down, they aren't yelling for an invasion of Cuba and they don't care much whether we test the bomb.

What everybody seems to want is certainty. No one can pledge that. But that's what everybody wants.

AMIDST ALL THIS the Republicans are quietly loading for bear. Make that donkey. They've taken a few political leaves out of the AFL-CIO tactical manual. They're not talking. They're organizing. They have special target areas. And not many at that.

In some states, such as Nebraska, they're shooting for the governorship.

In Illinois, for example, they are concentrating on Chicago. That's all. They feel they can save their senatorship for Everett Dirksen by targeting the Loop City where they lost the state to Kennedy last time.

In Massachusetts, they're centering almost solely on the Senate seat. They believe they can win for George Cabot Lodge as Ted Kennedy battles Ed McCormack and splits the Democratic party down the middle, they say.

In North Dakota, they'll hit out for the gubernatorial race. They feel they must get political muscle in the big cities, Grand Forks, Fargo and Bismarck.

In Wisconsin, they're concentrating in Milwaukee hoping to swing enough to win the governor's chair. In Michigan it is Detroit, in the big sweeps which they hope to take for George Romney. In Missouri they're orbiting in on the U.S. Senate race.

AS ONE TRAVELS across the land the words "real push in Pennsylvania" are heard. They hope to take the gubernatorial and Senate seats. That's a big hope.

In Texas they're trying for the governor's spot.

What must be made clear is that they're not stepping away from the other races. The target "MORE" program is run out of the Republican National Committee. It's not "targeting" California, for example, where they're leaving it to Nixon. Nor are they "targeting" New York or Ohio, where they believe they have powerful machines.

The real national push, the concentration of political workshops, money, energy, tactical science, all these will be mobilized in the 13 primary "target" states reported above. In these areas they feel it can be the GOP's year if they work hard on the precinct level and say little nationally.

Water Witching

The acient and dubious art of water witching is being transformed into a science that could help revive burning deserts and fill the empty pantries of the world.

Hydrologists recently have developed an electronic device reputed to find water simply, quickly and cheaply, the National Geographic Society says.

The device consists of four electrodes, two of which act as positive conductors and two as pickups. Current is sent into the ground through the implanted electrodes and it "hangs fire" for varying periods which are significant to a skilled operator.

The current flows easier and swifter in moist earth than in dry. Differences in moisture, however small, can be measured and the underground water level determined.

The method reportedly has detected water in arid places in the United States, Canada and Mexico. A comprehensive water survey of an area can be made in an hour or two.

The device has attracted favorable attention all over the world, particularly from officials in the water-hungry Middle East, but it can never match oldtime water witching in color, confusion and mystical trimmings.

Attack On Court

By David Lawrence

Bill Would Remove Some Of Rights

The Kennedy administration has just made an attempt to weaken the Supreme Court of the United States which might not have been surprising if it had come from the John Birchers or other so-called "extremists."

David Lawrence

In a bill written by some of the top advisers of the President, and introduced in Congress, the administration demands that Congress strip the Supreme Court of any power to review the proposed law governing tariff changes and duties and relations with the Common Market in Europe.

Rarely in American history has there been any significant move to get Congress to limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States. In 1868, Congress did take away from the Supreme Court appellate jurisdiction under the Habeas Corpus Act of 1867 in an effort to prevent the court from passing on the constitutionality of reconstruction laws. Shortly thereafter, in a famous case the court itself affirmed the right of Congress to make "exceptions" to its appellate jurisdiction.

Today, the power sought by the Kennedy administration is very sweeping indeed, as it calls for an abolition of the right of any citizen to question the acts of the President in the complex and far-reaching field of tariffs and customs duties which he could impose or remove at will.

Under the proposed law, the President would be authorized to make a variety of determinations or reduction or elimination of duties, on adjustment assistance, extraordinary relief and other matters covered by the terms of the act.

Section 404 then says that all these determinations by the president or by any administering agency "shall be final and conclusive and shall not be subject to review by any court."

It has not been revealed just what the framers of the proposed law are afraid of and just why they would deprive the citizen of relief if he is being discriminated against in government action or if his constitutional rights are being violated.

What the proposed section means is that, no matter what the Constitution says about "due process of law," there is no way that an injured citizen can petition a federal court for the redress of any wrong done him by the government in a tariff or foreign trade transaction.

NO MORE SWEEPING attack on constitutional rights has arisen in recent years. Incidentally, the provision in the bill denying court review would in itself be constitutional if enacted, because Article III of the Constitution says:

"In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those to which a state shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."

These "exceptions" enacted by Congress could cover any legislation affecting the rights of individual citizens.

Certainly if the Supreme Court is deprived by law of the right to hear a case, and, indeed, if every lower court is ordered to refuse to hear any petition, a wrong done by an arbitrary act of an executive agency of the government cannot be corrected through the courts.

Everyone knows that the President himself isn't going to administer the new tariff law, with its multifarious provisions, and that subordinate officials will carry on this work during the three or five years that Congress may set as the period to be covered.

SO IT REALLY means that Congress will have delegated to the "administering agencies" supreme authority over thousands of businesses and the jobs of their employes, and there will be no means through the courts of achieving justice if the law is improperly administered by the executive.

There is a good deal of mystery as to who wrote the draft of the proposed law, which is called H.R. 9900, and particularly the provision known as Section 404. It is known that an under secretary of state, George W. Ball, a New York lawyer, was at the head of the task force that worked on the whole problem before the bill was transmitted to the House Ways and Means Committee with the request that it be introduced and presented as an administration measure.

It may be that in the report filed by Mr. Ball and his associates with the President, analyzing the tariff situation and the need for supreme powers by the president, some reasons were given for depriving the courts of all power to review any action taken under this proposed law but Mr. Ball's report has never been made public.

AGAIN AND AGAIN in recent hearings, questions have been asked by members of the House Ways and Means Committee as to who drafted or sponsored the bill's provisions but the answers have been hazy or the witnesses have insisted they didn't know.

It seems incredible that an administration which professes to be interested in civil rights would go on record as taking away the rights of millions of citizens to petition federal courts for relief from injustices which they claim would affect their livelihood.

It seems incredible, too, that Congress would ever enact such a law. If it does get through, this would certainly indicate a lack of confidence in our federal courts or a fear of their impartial decisions.

Purely Personal

By Truman Twill

Nothing done in the name of politics surprises me but some things sadden me, such as changing the position of the elephants in a parade for Jackie Kennedy in India because it would never do to make them too conspicuous for sensitive Democrats back home.

I am given to understand by scouts that my long-range admiration for the First Lady is causing me to be thought about harshly by some of her non-admirers, and this I am sure I'll be able to bear bravely.

One of the things I often think about is a skunk I once worked with, giving him the benefit of every doubt because I did not want to face the fact I had to work with a person I despised. I was wrong. He was 100 per cent skunk.

Another thing I am fed up with is the practice of predicting a business boom every year then hollering for the resuscitator when it turns out to be another normal year. What's wrong with normal years that they should be regarded as national emergencies?

If Congress in its presumed wisdom would quit collecting taxes on money spent for education it could quit stewing about support for education. The people could afford to support it themselves.

The same people who poked fun at Dwight Eisenhower for scrambling his syntax in press conferences now are holding their sides over John Kennedy's — and maybe they should tape-record their own stuff before they crack a rib with mirth.

The largest emergency of recent years that has come up in Rosy Fingered Dawn was replacement of a culvert that washed out in the runoff when the snow melted and when it had been done we wondered if it shouldn't have been paid for by the neighbor whose land produced the melted snow.

There are so many things I don't understand that I'm gratified by the few things I do understand, such as the failure of authoritarian Marxists to make agriculture behave according to plan. Agriculture behaves according to a bigger plan than any bubbleheaded Marxist ever could conceive.

As the twig is bent so the tree inclines. An orphan lamb named Patrick, for the day he was born, regards me as his mother because the only source of supply he knows anything about is the baby bottle he drinks out of. It's embarrassing.

As usual I am reading the news from baseball training camps but so far I have been unable to believe it because the weather has been too bad.

I never have known anyone who believes 100 per cent in free speech, though I have known a few people who believed in the other fellow's right to state an opinion they hated, provided he stayed at a safe distance and didn't raise his voice.

If they made me governor, automobile registration plates would be mailed to applicants on receipt of their checks, but don't wait for this happy eventuality, because I am not a candidate and if tapped for the office I'd refuse to serve.

We don't understand inclusion of cosmetics unless President is showing a natural reaction to use of make-up on TV shows. Sen. Kefauver has been probing drug prices for last several years without much White House support, but the President's action in rusihing onto the field from bench and grabbing ball may now mean business.

He says 90 per cent of doctors' prescriptions today are for drugs unknown 20 years ago, and he wants law to get them sold under simple common names at lower prices.

This is a pill-taking country and the upkeep of a medicine cabinet runs into money in any home. President also takes crack at installment-buying, interest rates. Maybe he thinks cost of medicine is getting so high there may have to be a time payment system for pills, powders and capsules.

NEW YORK WOMAN testified her husband, a judge, beat her up often. Threw the bench at her? But couldn't she have cried "I object"?

Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller based her divorce action on mental cruelty. Maybe it all goes back to governor's campaign in which she had to smile and eat blintzes and bagels.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy visisted the Taj Mahal. It is understood the building exclaimed "WOW!"

U.S. may permit shipment of $4 million in grain to Red China. (Is that enough money to guarantee sufficient abuse of us?)

Governor of New Jersey proposes higher estate taxes to help pay for storm wreckage. Damage to the dead and families through taxes has already been so extensive there can't be much left for anything else.

President says that where supermarkets carried only 1,500 items 20 years ago they now carry 6,000. And 5,000 always seem to be in the other alley.

Remember away back when fighters, signing for the heavyweight championship of world, seemed happy about it. Sonny Liston and Floyd Patterson wore funeral expressions of men signing for a trip over Niagara Falls in a plastic bucket. The money involved will run into millions, but they seemed as if they were agreeing to fight for permanent possession of a can of second-hand worms.

Posing for newspaper and TV photographers, they registered boredom, sorrow and despondency as they faced riches. Pictures should have had line below reading "Each man ate a hearty meal, said 'I am innocent' and expressed a hope for a last minute pardon."

Championship heavyweights have for a century signed with ear-to-ear smiles, lightness of spirit, gags and horseplay. They supplied color, entertainment and good clean fun, at no time suggesting by mood or word they had been rudely interrupted on the way to the mortuary chapel.

What's happened? Purses are bigger, fights are shorter, training camps are more de luxe and sidelines offer added money. But the boys seemed to be on verge of tears.

Could it be the lawyers, financial advisers, current managers, past managers and future managers which make them appear to be in tryout for role of grave diggers in a charity performance of Hamlet?

Lawyers outnumber photographers, indicating fighters need more protection in courts than in ring.

The word "escrow" is alone alarming. And there's no escaping the fact that fighters, no matter how big the purse, can always see shadow of income tax man in the gym, on the road and during bag punching and rope-skipping.

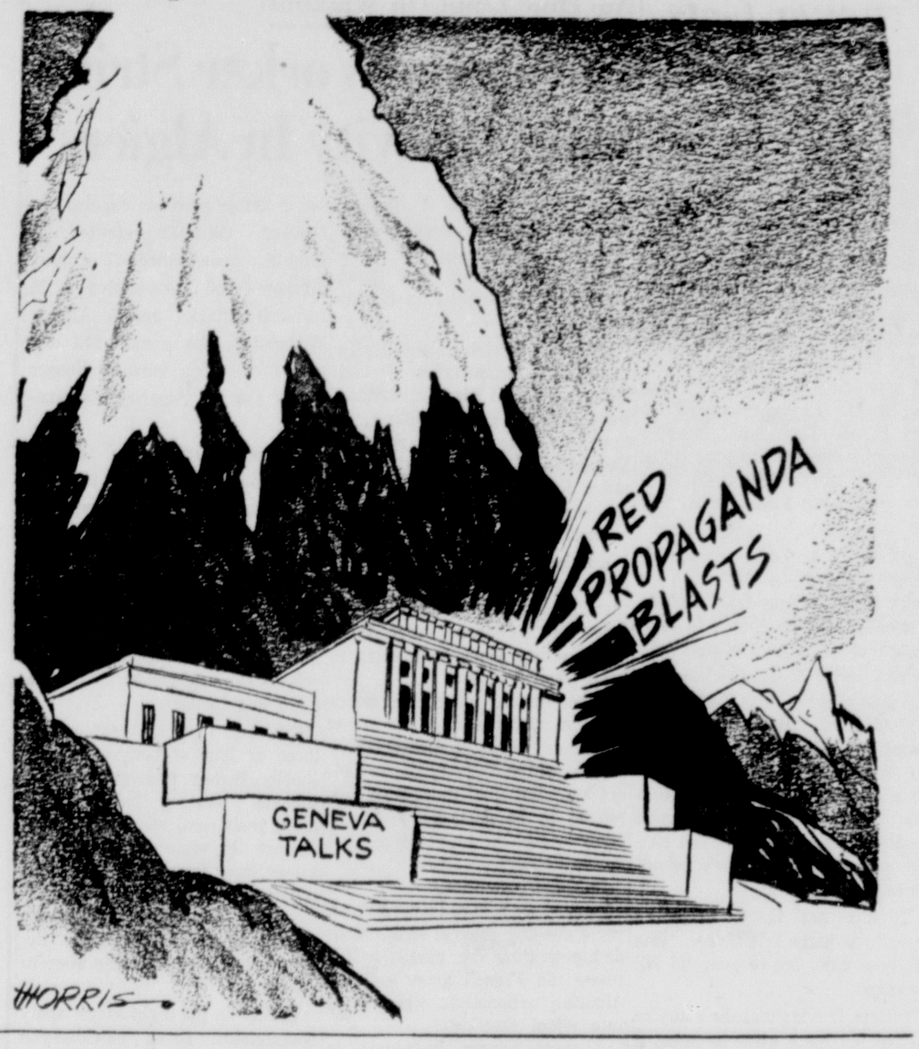

A heavyweight championship contestant might well say "I have trained hard, feel fine and am confident of victory in the bout. What worries me is how I will make out with the federal revenue department."

DICK RODGERS' solo musical, off to good notices, is called "No Strings," but it will need miles of stout cord to hold the bundles of money.

"No Strings" is an odd name, but he couldn't very well have named it "The STRING and I," without dragging in previous musical.

GOP Pushes National Drive

By Victor Riesel

Now I am a veteran—though I didn't think I'd make it—of the great ground blizzard of '62. It seems as if it was only a few hours ago that we were mushing through the vast drifts and 50-mile winds towards Kearney, Neb. One of us came on a sign which said we were some 1,700 miles from New York and equally distant from San Francisco. We were standing in the center of the United States — geographically, not politically. We pushed on and discovered that some very energetic Republicans, including former Secretary of the Interior Fred Seaton, were holding a political workshop there.

Victor Riesel

The blizzard disrupted it. But there will be another toward the end of the month. For this is part of the new and still unpublicized nationwide "MORE" drive —"MORE" standing for Mobilization of Republican Enterprise.

Nebraska has a Democratic governor and the GOP hopes to unseat him this fall with Fred Seaton, once mentioned as a presidential hopeful, as their candidate.

I am not here engaged in writing a local weather report or memo on regional politics. Kearney, Neb., is symptomatic. The Republicans there believe a conservative ground swell is sweeping across the land. The Kearney workshops are but two of those operating or scheduled in strategic areas.

ONE GROUND SWELL doesn't make a political season. But from what I saw and heard among the thousands of persons I spoke to of all ages there's a swing to the right—in the universities, in former liberal communities, among the rank and file workers.

Not a sharp swing. Not to the far right. Just plain old-fashioned conservatism. Virtually every community now has its little committees made up of doctors, lawyers and the new class of engineers—a swiftly growing social strata stretching across the land.

If you were to ask why, the answer would have to be, to each his own. The engineers don't want their defense jobs phased out. The rank and file don't want their factories closed.

The students are uncertain where anything is going. They aren't demanding that the Berlin wall be ripped down, they aren't yelling for an invasion of Cuba and they don't care much whether we test the bomb.

What everybody seems to want is certainty. No one can pledge that. But that's what everybody wants.

AMIDST ALL THIS the Republicans are quietly loading for bear. Make that donkey. They've taken a few political leaves out of the AFL-CIO tactical manual. They're not talking. They're organizing. They have special target areas. And not many at that.

In some states, such as Nebraska, they're shooting for the governorship.

In Illinois, for example, they are concentrating on Chicago. That's all. They feel they can save their senatorship for Everett Dirksen by targeting the Loop City where they lost the state to Kennedy last time.

In Massachusetts, they're centering almost solely on the Senate seat. They believe they can win for George Cabot Lodge as Ted Kennedy battles Ed McCormack and splits the Democratic party down the middle, they say.

In Alaska, the GOP is concentrating on the gubernatorial and senatorial races.

In North Dakota, they'll hit out for the gubernatorial race. They feel they must get political muscle in the big cities, Grand Forks, Fargo and Bismarck.

In Wisconsin, they're concentrating in Milwaukee hoping to swing enough to win the governor's chair. In Michigan it is Detroit, in the big sweeps which they hope to take for George Romney. In Missouri they're orbiting in on the U.S. Senate race.

AS ONE TRAVELS across the land the words "real push in Pennsylvania" are heard. They hope to take the gubernatorial and Senate seats. That's a big hope.

In Texas they're trying for the governor's spot.

What must be made clear is that they're not stepping away from the other races. The target "MORE" program is run out of the Republican National Committee. It's not "targeting" California, for example, where they're leaving it to Nixon. Nor are they "targeting" New York or Ohio, where they believe they have powerful machines.

The real national push, the concentration of political workshops, money, energy, tactical science, all these will be mobilized in the 13 primary "target" states reported above. In these areas they feel it can be the GOP's year if they work hard on the precinct level and say little nationally.

Water Witching

The acient and dubious art of water witching is being transformed into a science that could help revive burning deserts and fill the empty pantries of the world.

Hydrologists recently have developed an electronic device reputed to find water simply, quickly and cheaply, the National Geographic Society says.

The device consists of four electrodes, two of which act as positive conductors and two as pickups. Current is sent into the ground through the implanted electrodes and it "hangs fire" for varying periods which are significant to a skilled operator.

The current flows easier and swifter in moist earth than in dry. Differences in moisture, however small, can be measured and the underground water level determined.

The method reportedly has detected water in arid places in the United States, Canada and Mexico. A comprehensive water survey of an area can be made in an hour or two.

The device has attracted favorable attention all over the world, particularly from officials in the water-hungry Middle East, but it can never match oldtime water witching in color, confusion and mystical trimmings.

Attack On Court

By David Lawrence

Bill Would Remove Some Of Rights

The Kennedy administration has just made an attempt to weaken the Supreme Court of the United States which might not have been surprising if it had come from the John Birchers or other so-called "extremists."

David Lawrence

In a bill written by some of the top advisers of the President, and introduced in Congress, the administration demands that Congress strip the Supreme Court of any power to review the proposed law governing tariff changes and duties and relations with the Common Market in Europe.

Rarely in American history has there been any significant move to get Congress to limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States. In 1868, Congress did take away from the Supreme Court appellate jurisdiction under the Habeas Corpus Act of 1867 in an effort to prevent the court from passing on the constitutionality of reconstruction laws. Shortly thereafter, in a famous case the court itself affirmed the right of Congress to make "exceptions" to its appellate jurisdiction.

Today, the power sought by the Kennedy administration is very sweeping indeed, as it calls for an abolition of the right of any citizen to question the acts of the President in the complex and far-reaching field of tariffs and customs duties which he could impose or remove at will.

Under the proposed law, the President would be authorized to make a variety of determinations or reduction or elimination of duties, on adjustment assistance, extraordinary relief and other matters covered by the terms of the act.

Section 404 then says that all these determinations by the president or by any administering agency "shall be final and conclusive and shall not be subject to review by any court."

It has not been revealed just what the framers of the proposed law are afraid of and just why they would deprive the citizen of relief if he is being discriminated against in government action or if his constitutional rights are being violated.

What the proposed section means is that, no matter what the Constitution says about "due process of law," there is no way that an injured citizen can petition a federal court for the redress of any wrong done him by the government in a tariff or foreign trade transaction.

NO MORE SWEEPING attack on constitutional rights has arisen in recent years. Incidentally, the provision in the bill denying court review would in itself be constitutional if enacted, because Article III of the Constitution says:

"In all cases affecting ambassadors, other public ministers and consuls, and those to which a state shall be party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all other cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and fact, with such exceptions, and under such regulations as the Congress shall make."

These "exceptions" enacted by Congress could cover any legislation affecting the rights of individual citizens.

Certainly if the Supreme Court is deprived by law of the right to hear a case, and, indeed, if every lower court is ordered to refuse to hear any petition, a wrong done by an arbitrary act of an executive agency of the government cannot be corrected through the courts.

Everyone knows that the President himself isn't going to administer the new tariff law, with its multifarious provisions, and that subordinate officials will carry on this work during the three or five years that Congress may set as the period to be covered.

SO IT REALLY means that Congress will have delegated to the "administering agencies" supreme authority over thousands of businesses and the jobs of their employes, and there will be no means through the courts of achieving justice if the law is improperly administered by the executive.

There is a good deal of mystery as to who wrote the draft of the proposed law, which is called H.R. 9900, and particularly the provision known as Section 404. It is known that an under secretary of state, George W. Ball, a New York lawyer, was at the head of the task force that worked on the whole problem before the bill was transmitted to the House Ways and Means Committee with the request that it be introduced and presented as an administration measure.

It may be that in the report filed by Mr. Ball and his associates with the President, analyzing the tariff situation and the need for supreme powers by the president, some reasons were given for depriving the courts of all power to review any action taken under this proposed law but Mr. Ball's report has never been made public.

AGAIN AND AGAIN in recent hearings, questions have been asked by members of the House Ways and Means Committee as to who drafted or sponsored the bill's provisions but the answers have been hazy or the witnesses have insisted they didn't know.

It seems incredible that an administration which professes to be interested in civil rights would go on record as taking away the rights of millions of citizens to petition federal courts for relief from injustices which they claim would affect their livelihood.

It seems incredible, too, that Congress would ever enact such a law. If it does get through, this would certainly indicate a lack of confidence in our federal courts or a fear of their impartial decisions.

Purely Personal

Nothing done in the name of politics surprises me but some things sadden me, such as changing the position of the elephants in a parade for Jackie Kennedy in India because it would never do to make them too conspicuous for sensitive Democrats back home.

I am given to understand by scouts that my long-range admiration for the First Lady is causing me to be thought about harshly by some of her non-admirers, and this I am sure I'll be able to bear bravely.

One of the things I often think about is a skunk I once worked with, giving him the benefit of every doubt because I did not want to face the fact I had to work with a person I despised. I was wrong. He was 100 per cent skunk.

Another thing I am fed up with is the practice of predicting a business boom every year then hollering for the resuscitator when it turns out to be another normal year. What's wrong with normal years that they should be regarded as national emergencies?

If Congress in its presumed wisdom would quit collecting taxes on money spent for education it could quit stewing about support for education. The people could afford to support it themselves.

The same people who poked fun at Dwight Eisenhower for scrambling his syntax in press conferences now are holding their sides over John Kennedy's — and maybe they should tape-record their own stuff before they crack a rib with mirth.

The largest emergency of recent years that has come up in Rosy Fingered Dawn was replacement of a culvert that washed out in the runoff when the snow melted and when it had been done we wondered if it shouldn't have been paid for by the neighbor whose land produced the melted snow.

There are so many things I don't understand that I'm gratified by the few things I do understand, such as the failure of authoritarian Marxists to make agriculture behave according to plan. Agriculture behaves according to a bigger plan than any bubbleheaded Marxist ever could conceive.

As the twig is bent so the tree inclines. An orphan lamb named Patrick, for the day he was born, regards me as his mother because the only source of supply he knows anything about is the baby bottle he drinks out of. It's embarrassing.

As usual I am reading the news from baseball training camps but so far I have been unable to believe it because the weather has been too bad.

I never have known anyone who believes 100 per cent in free speech, though I have known a few people who believed in the other fellow's right to state an opinion they hated, provided he stayed at a safe distance and didn't raise his voice.

If they made me governor, automobile registration plates would be mailed to applicants on receipt of their checks, but don't wait for this happy eventuality, because I am not a candidate and if tapped for the office I'd refuse to serve.

Midland's Water Plant Is Insured

The Midland Municipal Authority Wednesday evening adopted Hartford Insurance Co. steam boiler insurance, with liability coverage of $100,000 for the main water plant and $25,000 for a booster station.

The policy also covers repair and replacement of equipment and inspections by the company. It was adopted after a motion by Rudolph Presutti on a recommendation of Granville Kester, Michael Baker Jr., Inc., consulting engineer for the authority, who had been asked to study the insurance.

IT WAS brought out the authority did not have insurance and no coverage in case the plant boiler exploded, hurting or killing someone.

The authority had considered insurance several years ago but did not obtain any because of lack of funds, discussion disclosed.

The premium over a three-year period will be $2,295.54 and paid yearly in amounts of $918.22, $688.37 and $688.35. The Basinger & Gifford Agency at Midland is the agent.

Kester also reported on a study the authority asked concerning the need of a grit chamber at the new sewage disposal plant. He recommended a grit chamber or grit removal facilities since dirt and other particles are entering the plant through the sanitary sewer system from street wash and probably from some storm sewers.

He said the grit will interfere with the plant operation. Presently it is removed manually and Don Craik, water department and sewage disposal plant manager, reported 36 cubic feet grit was shoveled out Wednesday.

—:—

R. E. STEEBNER, borough and authority engineer, said he discussed grit removal with engineers planning the new sewage plant who felt it was negligible.

Kester said grit removal facilities, operated by air, would cost $18,000, including engineering fees and $9,000 for the equipment.

Steebner reported that money is being planned in the coming borough budget for taking out nine catch basins in the west end from 2nd to 4th Sts., which run into the sanitary system.

But authority members do not believe this would help much and asked Steebner to report the recommendation to Council, the "landlord" who leases the sewage disposal plant to the authority. Steebner said about $26,000 remains in the sewage plant fund.

IN OTHER business, the authority gave Craik a $50 a month raise retroactive to Jan. 1. In addition to managing the water department, he was named manager of the sewage disposal plant when Council handed its operations to the authority in the winter. His raise was in line with other raises given in recent months to water department union employes and the office staff.

The authority will write Council, requesting it to construct a storage building and lease it to the authority. The borough is presently erecting a storage building at the rear of the borough garage on Railroad Ave., Steebner reported, and an additional space of 20-x-38 feet is available for an adjoining storage room.

THE AUTHORITY decided it will transfer its and the union's pension fund to a different account at the Beaver Trust Co., Midland branch, in order to draw 4 per cent interest instead of 3. There is about $2,100 in the two accounts.

A letter was received from the union but it will be gone over later when Atty. Robert Masters, authority solicitor attends. He was absent.

Craik went over the authority's audit for 1961, prepared by Snodgrass & Co., certified public accountants of Beaver Falls.

Dr. Zanvel Sigal, authority chairman, asked that a company representative attend the next meeting April 18 to answer any questions of authority members, a free service of the firm. The audit shows the authority has about $100,000 in actual assets with total assets of over $850,000.

—:—

DR. SIGAL reported that representatives of several firms will visit the water plant soon to study office remodeling and a new bookkeeping system.

Problems have been encountered since the authority took over the sewage treatment plant and the billing of its rates.

Craik read a letter from the Pennsylvania Department of Health that its Water Sanitation Board has issued a cease and desist order against the Petroleum Solvents, Inc., at Vanport to stop cleaning barges containing chemicals which in February created a taste and odor in the Midland water supply. The letter said the company would comply.

Water department bills of $12,015.48 and sewage disposal plant bills of $1,593.13 were ordered paid.

Negotiations Set To Open April 2 In Rail Dispute

CLEVELAND (AP) — Negotiations by officials of the five rail operationg unions and railroad management representatives over a work rules dispute are to open April 2 in Chicago.

Chief executives of the five unions, meeting here, said Wednesday they would lead off the negotiations personally. They agreed to the date and site suggested by the Carriers' Conference Committee, which represents the railroads.

The April 2 meeting, the union leaders aid, will be a resumption of conferences on the disputes arising out of notices by the railroads which proposed these changes: Eliminating rules requiring firemen on diesel engines in freight and yard services, revising base of pay, the right to interdivisional runs, the right to abolish assignments, the right to combine road and yard service and the right to control the size of crews.

The unions made a counterproposal seeking protection for employes in mergers, guaranteed annual pay, reduction in hours worked, overtime for holiday pay, night differential and guaranteed monthly working time.

Midland Sportsmen Plan Live Bird Shoot

Plans for a live bird shoot Sunday, starting at 10 a. m. at the Midland Sportsmen's Club farm in Ohioville Borough, and a trap shoot April 1, have been announced by the club.

Mike Hornick, president, presided. Next meeting is April 11 when a pre-trout rally is planned.

Kester said grit removal facilities, operated by air, would cost $18,000, including engineering fees and $9,000 for the equipment.

Steebner reported that money is being planned in the coming borough budget for taking out nine catch basins in the west end from 2nd to 4th Sts., which run into the sanitary system.

But authority members do not believe this would help much and asked Steebner to report the recommendation to Council, the "landlord" who leases the sewage disposal plant to the authority. Steebner said about $26,000 remains in the sewage plant fund.

IN OTHER business, the authority gave Craik a $50 a month raise retroactive to Jan. 1. In addition to managing the water department, he was named manager of the sewage disposal plant when Council handed its operations to the authority in the winter. His raise was in line with other raises given in recent months to water department union employes and the office staff.

The authority will write Council, requesting it to construct a storage building and lease it to the authority. The borough is presently erecting a storage building at the rear of the borough garage on Railroad Ave., Steebner reported, and an additional space of 20-x-38 feet is available for an adjoining storage room.

THE AUTHORITY decided it will transfer its and the union's pension fund to a different account at the Beaver Trust Co., Midland branch, in order to draw 4 per cent interest instead of 3. There is about $2,100 in the two accounts.

A letter was received from the union but it will be gone over later when Atty. Robert Masters, authority solicitor attends. He was absent.

Craik went over the authority's audit for 1961, prepared by Snodgrass & Co., certified public accountants of Beaver Falls.

Dr. Zanvel Sigal, authority chairman, asked that a company representative attend the next meeting April 18 to answer any questions of authority members, a free service of the firm. The audit shows the authority has about $100,000 in actual assets with total assets of over $850,000.

—:—

DR. SIGAL reported that representatives of several firms will visit the water plant soon to study office remodeling and a new bookkeeping system.

Problems have been encountered since the authority took over the sewage treatment plant and the billing of its rates.

Craik read a letter from the Pennsylvania Department of Health that its Water Sanitation Board has issued a cease and desist order against the Petroleum Solvents, Inc., at Vanport to stop cleaning barges containing chemicals which in February created a taste and odor in the Midland water supply. The letter said the company would comply.

Water department bills of $12,015.48 and sewage disposal plant bills of $1,593.13 were ordered paid.

Cumberland Lacks Water During Night

NEW CUMBERLAND — Working feverishly throughout the night, crews managed to restore water service to this community of 2,076 about mid-morning, nearly 11 hours after it was interrupted by a break in a 4-inch main.

Service was restored around 10 a. m. to some places such as the County Courthouse and the city school, where classes remained in session.

However, others still were without water while lines were bled and pressure built up. Mayor Albert Fuccy said his garage in the southern end still was without service.

The break occurred at the foot of Station Hill, which connects the upper and lower communities.

Mayor Fuccy said the line had been laid in ashes and appeared to have rotted out.

Because of a faulty valve in the area of the break, service had to be cut off to the entire community of more than 400 homes plus businesses, courthouse and school, Mayor Fuccy explained.

Secondary and elementary children were crestfallen when they reported to school this morning to learn classes would be held. Although the building was without water when classes first started, it was restored a little later.

Schenck Hopeful For Device To Combat Autos' Fumes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Paul F. Schenck, R-Ohio, is hopeful the automotive industry will come up soon with a workable device to control air pollution from automobile exhaust fumes.

"But if they don't, legislation can and will be enacted," said the 3rd Ohio District congressman who sponsored a 1960 law directing a Public Health Service study to isolate the harmful substances in exhaust gases.

"Air pollution is becoming of deep concern to a lot of people," Schenck said, citing estimates that pollution does damage of $7.5 billion a year to vegetation, livestock, metals and other materials—not to mention its effect on health.

"You can't exist without air and you don't have much choice—you have to breathe what's around you," Schenck said.

He will discuss the campaign against air pollution in a speech to the Cincinnati Society of Engineers tonight.

He said the Public Health Service report, due June 30, may provide the key to developing a successful device for control of harmful exhaust fumes.

Fire Damages Shed At Mine

SALINEVILLE — Flames caused serious damage at a concrete block building at the Plate Coal Co. mine about three miles southeast of here at 10 p. m. Wednesday, firemen reported.

The building housed a large diesel motor for an electric power generator and a smaller gasoline motor for winching cars in the mine shaft, located in Possum Hollow, according to Fire Chief Tony Brandonisio.

Operators of the mine today were checking over the equipment to determine the extent of the damage.

A neighbor of the mine area reported seeing light and smoke at the site occasionally and Brandonisio and William Saltsman investigated, and upon finding flames, summoned 10 firemen and two trucks.

Mine operations were suspended at 5 p. m. yesterday for the night. Cause of the blaze has not been determined, Brandonisio said.

Former pitchers scouting for the Boston Red Sox are Mace Brown, Bots Nekola, Harry Dorish, Denny Galehouse, Willard Nixon and Paul Schreiber.

Schenck Hopeful For Device To Combat Autos' Fumes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Paul F. Schenck, R-Ohio, is hopeful the automotive industry will come up soon with a workable device to control air pollution from automobile exhaust fumes.

"But if they don't, legislation can and will be enacted," said the 3rd Ohio District congressman who sponsored a 1960 law directing a Public Health Service study to isolate the harmful substances in exhaust gases.

"Air pollution is becoming of deep concern to a lot of people," Schenck said, citing estimates that pollution does damage of $7.5 billion a year to vegetation, livestock, metals and other materials—not to mention its effect on health.

"You can't exist without air and you don't have much choice—you have to breathe what's around you," Schenck said.

He will discuss the campaign against air pollution in a speech to the Cincinnati Society of Engineers tonight.

He said the Public Health Service report, due June 30, may provide the key to developing a successful device for control of harmful exhaust fumes.

Early New England laws compelled men to have their hair trimmed regularly, around a cap.

Fire Damages Shed At Mine

SALINEVILLE — Flames caused serious damage at a concrete block building at the Plate Coal Co. mine about three miles southeast of here at 10 p. m. Wednesday, firemen reported.

The building housed a large diesel motor for an electric power generator and a smaller gasoline motor for winching cars in the mine shaft, located in Possum Hollow, according to Fire Chief Tony Brandonisio.

Operators of the mine today were checking over the equipment to determine the extent of the damage.

A neighbor of the mine area reported seeing light and smoke at the site occasionally and Brandonisio and William Saltsman investigated, and upon finding flames, summoned 10 firemen and two trucks.

Mine operations were suspended at 5 p. m. yesterday for the night. Cause of the blaze has not been determined, Brandonisio said.

Former pitchers scouting for the Boston Red Sox are Mace Brown, Bots Nekola, Harry Dorish, Denny Galehouse, Willard Nixon and Paul Schreiber.

On Disarm. Berlin

Kennedy Insists Talks Continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite unabating signs of an East-West stalemate, President Kennedy says the Geneva disarmament conference and its sideline talks on Berlin must go on.

And he is gratified by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's declared willingness to cooperate with the United States on outer space projects.

At his news conference Wednesday, Kennedy acknowledged there is a basic difference between U.S. and Russian positions at Geneva on policing a nuclear test ban. He said "there is no evidence that we are going to quickly reach a settlement" on Berlin or Southeast Asia.

Kennedy asserted, however, that he is not prepared to abandon the effort at Geneva.

"It would be a mistake," he said, "for us to feel that there the prospects are finished."

Welcoming Khrushchev's reply to his proposals for cooperation in such fields as weather forecasting and communication via space satellites, Kennedy said the United States is committed to moving ahead "in a spirit of cooperation and for the benefit of all mankind."

A few hours after the news conference in Washington, U.S. and Soviet representatives on the U.N. Outer Space Committee met in New York.

Kennedy promised U.S. interests would be protected in these negotiations—negotiations he said are necessary "as space continues to be more and more under the hazard of being used for military purposes."

Kennedy's mood was serious, almost stern, throughout his 10th meeting with newsmen in the last 11 weeks. He spoke with obvious feeling about support for the United Nations and the service performed by National Guardsmen and reservists.

He shut out further discussion of his dispute with former Vice President Richard M. Nixon over his 1960 campaign stand on Cuba.

When a reporter questioned his implication that the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, was American territory, he said he may have been "incorrect legally" but insisted the United States holds treaty-granted responsibility for the area.

On a variety of subjects, Kennedy had this to say:

NUCLEAR CONTROLS—An array of observation posts around the world would be inadequate unless inspection teams were allowed inside the Soviet Union, for example, to determine whether a nuclear explosion or an earthquake caused signals picked up by detection instruments located elsewhere. Soviet refusal to admit inspection teams has raised the greatest barrier to agreement at Geneva.

UNITED NATIONS — Advocating the purchase of U.N. bonds, Kennedy said there is no evidence the United Nations would be able to pay back within the three allotted years a $100-million loan proposed by Republican senators as an alternative. Failure to go through with the bond purchase, he said, would break down U.N. operations in the Congo and Middle East.

RESERVISTS—Some people always get better breaks than others, he advised reservists who objected to being called to active duty. "Life is unfair," he said. But he declared they have "strengthened the foreign policy of the United State" in the Berlin and Southeast Asian crises and predicted they will find satisfaction later in feeling they contributed to the security of their families and country.

ALGERIA — Reproaching Moscow for quick recognition of the provisional Algerian government, Kennedy said the United States will act when the proper moment comes rather than attempt "for political purposes to exploit a situation."

CUBA—Cuban plans to try prisoners captured in last year's futile invasion attempt as war criminals "is a matter of great national as well as personal distress," he said.

MEDICAL CARE—To brand his medical care program an opening wedge for socialized medicine, Kennedy said, is to use a version of "the oldest argument in the world." Had that argument succeeded, "there would not have been any progress on any social legislation in this country."

CONGRESS — He said Democratic party leaders "have been very faithful" and are "doing the best they can."

COMMUNICATIONS — Kennedy said he would have to examine whether cutting to $1 the price of shares in a communications satellite corporation to enable all taxpayers to get in on the project would be in the public interest. He voiced doubt the rate of return would compare with other investments for many years.

RS70—Nobody won or lost, Kennedy said, in the agreement that averted a contest over whether Congress had authority to order the executive branch to spend more than it wanted on the high-altitude RS70 bomber. It served the public interest and preserved good relations with Congress, he said.

JAMES Son of Alphaeus

"And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him . . . Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus . . ."

—Mark III:14,18

No name in the New Testament has caused quite so much confusion as that of James.

The reason is that in different places we read variously of James the son of Alphaeus, James the brother of the Lord; and of James the Less.

Are all these one and the same person? Catholic scholars for the most part say yes. Many Protestant authorities agree with them.

But then another question arises. What is meant by the designation, "brother of the Lord?"

Catholic interpreters assert that the Greek word, "adelphos," used in this reference, can mean step-brother or even a near relative.

Therefore, they argue, James was not the brother of Jesus in the literal sense—that is, he was not the son of Mary, the Virgin. It is more likely, they contend, that he was the son of the Virgin's sister, and therefore a cousin of Jesus.

In the early Church, the Greek fathers believed him to be the son of Joseph by a first marriage. Latin writers of the same period, however, all regarded James as the cousin of Jesus, since they taught that Mary remained a virgin all her life.

Whatever his exact relation to Jesus, James held a position of great respect among the Apostles.

It is said that after the martyrdom of St. Stephen, the other Apostles chose James to preside over affairs of the church in Jerusalem. Hence, he is sometimes referred to as the Bishop of Jerusalem.

According to the historian Hegesippus, who lived toward the end of the second century, James made a public declaration of his faith from one of the Temple ramparts, and was hurled to the ground by angry scribes and Pharisees. He was not killed by the fall, so his attackers then stoned him. As he was being killed, so the account goes, he called upon God to forgive his murderers.

2 Councilmen Resign From Chester Posts

their resignations, and Councilman Charles Kology moved to receive applications April 4 for the two vacant posts. Both motions were approved.

Lawrence Cline, Chester Republican chairman and former councilman, said he served with "several" councilmen who were not free-holders, and said Hissam and Davis have proved "they are good councilmen," adding he "wants them elected by the people."

—:—

IN HER written summary, Mrs. Turner said, "These are unfortunate circumstances, but ones that can happen anywhere. . ."

"A mistake was made by the previous Council in qualifying persons for Council who were not free-holders. None of us around this table is to blame for this situation. . ."

The issue arose at the meeting March 8 when Donald Hood, former councilman, asked if all candidates for the April 3 primary had paid real and personal taxes as required by the city charter.

Subsequent study of the 1907 city charter disclosed that candidates were to pay at least $100 on real or personal property before legally taking office.

—:—

MRS. TURNER last week ruled that a candidate who is ineligible must remove the disqualification before taking office.

In other action, Council approved poll workers and voting sites for the primary. The polls will be open from 7:30 a. m. to 7 p. m., and poll workers will receive $8.

The workers and sites are:

First Ward — Megailey's Garage at 1st St., Mrs. Joseph Cornell, Mrs. Sadie Gibbs, Mrs. Charles Pruden, Mrs. Helen McClain and Mrs. Joseph Ferguson.

Second Ward — Central School, Indiana Ave., Mrs. Bernard Poole, Mrs. Harry Weaver, Mrs. Smith Culp and two others to be named later.

—:—

THIRD WARD—City Hall, Carolina Ave., Mrs. A. N. Dean, Mrs. Mary Sturgis, Mrs. Bertha Hutton, Mrs. Rita Edwards and Mrs. Charles Driehorst.

Fourth Ward — High School, Indiana Ave., Mrs. Charles Reed, Mrs. Frank Richmond, Mrs. Garnet Ash, Mrs. Lester Wehner and Mrs. Lester Lutton.

Fifth Ward — Washington School, Mrs. Mary Bishop, Mrs. Isabel Allison, Miss Betty Hindes, Mrs. Ada Erlitz and Mrs. Ruth Ferguson.

Councilman Bishop asked for Council action on control of house-to-house soliciting by salesmen in the city, declaring there were a number of magazine salesmen in the city Wednesday who reportedly were rude to several householders.

—:—

IT WAS POINTED out the city ordinances require a license for such soliciting, but a company can obtain one license for a group of solicitors.

Mrs. Turner said she would prepare a proposed change in the ordinance to strengthen it.

A request from an Orion Ave. resident on an estimate for the cost of seal chip job on the street —relayed by Bishop—was referred to the Councilman Cyril Govey, street committee chairman.

ROY CASHDOLLAR, clerk, was instructed to write to Rep. Arch Moore concerning extension of requested mail delivery service to Tinsonville and the West Carolina Ave. areas.

Councilman Govey expressed appreciation to the firemen, police and water department for assistance at the home of William Rogers of Pennsylvania Ave. last week when the family was overcome by smoke. He also expressed thanks to a number of industries for "co-operation with the city in the past two years."

City

applied on a trial basis, Welch said.

Welch said a conference with the glass company's representative and an inspection of streets on which the solution has been used convinced city officials that it is the answer to the local problem.

Over a two-year period, the solution hardens the surface of dirt streets and helps fill up chuckholes, he said.

Plans call for applications of the solution each spring and fall.

The calcium chloride solution is applied from tanker trucks, the same method used for distributing the oil.

One of the principal complaints against the annual oiling was that the material smeared autos and was tracked into homes.

At the meeting last night, various methods of street improvement were discussed. Welch explained that street improvements generally are undertaken after residents circulate petitions. Then the petition can be turned over to the engineer's office to determine the type of pavement best suited to the neighborhood and the probable cost, he added.

It was the first of a series of meetings ward councilmen are scheduled to hold with their constitutents to discuss street improvements.

4,581 In Beaver Get Chest X-Ray

The Beaver County Tuberculosis Association reported 4,581 persons received free chest X-rays during the five-day county-wide tour conducted by the mobile clinic last week.

Hundreds could not be accommodated because of limited time and space. They were advised to attend the association's clinic at Rochester Hospital on the fourth Thursday of each month. The continuing free adult chest X-ray service is made possible through Christmas Seal sales.

The mobile clinic was co-sponsored by the association and the State Department of Health. Various civic organizations co-operated. They included the Aliquippa Exchange Club, Midland Steelworkers Local 1212, New Brighton Parent - Teachers Association, Ambridge Lions Club and the Upper Beaver Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce.

All persons X-rayed will be notified of the results within two to three weeks, the association indicated.

Steubenville Man Convicted In Slaying

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Matthew Cochran, 62, of Steubenville, was convicted of manslaughter yesterday in the fatal shooting of Claude Davis Sr., 60, of Steubenville, Jan. 11.

Davis was an uninvited guest at a party at Cochran's home. Cochran threw him out of the house and Davis was shot when he returned.

Boyd

lawful to be intoxicated or to be disorderly.

Atty. Robert Kapp and Atty. Ben Berman, defense counsel, had contended Boyd — while changing a tire on his car along the secluded lane near Beaver Creek —had become enraged at his estranged wife when she threatened to have their 11-month-old daughter placed for adoption with an aunt.

Defense testimony showed Boyd had been drinking heavily at a party the night before the dawn slaying, and both he and his wife had had beer after he picked her up in front of her Dresden Ave. home.

'Reasonable Doubt'

A conviction for first degree murder would have required the jury to believe "beyond reasonable doubt" that there had been premeditation, while a second degree murder conviction would have required the panel to believe the slaying had been purposeful and malicious, without premeditation.

Prosecutor Brokaw had argued Boyd, former pottery worker and service station attendant, had deliberately and maliciously beaten his wife then, after dragging her down over the hillside, obtained a shotgun from his car and fired it at her head.

Boyd, sober and unemotional during the trial, smiled broadly for the first time as he shook hands with his counsel.

"I feel great," he said when first questioned about his reaction to the verdict.

'Several' Votes Taken

A jury member later said "several" votes were taken by the panel during its deliberations. The panel had been ordered to be prepared to remain at Lisbon overnight in event a verdict was not reached.

Dinner had been ordered for the panel at the Hotel Wick for 5:30, but shortly before that time, it was indicated a verdict was about to be reached.

There were about 20 in the courtroom as the jury filed in, led by Taylor with the verdict form in his hand.

"Have you reached a verdict?" Judge Buzzard asked. Taylor answered, "Yes, your honor." Earl Foster, court bailiff carried the form to Judge Buzzard, who read it aloud.

Defendant Cheered

As the judge finished reading, Atty. Kapp and Atty. Berman smiled and patted Boyd on the arm.

"Do you wish to have the jury polled?" Judge Buzzard asked. "No, your honor," Kapp and Berman said simultaneously.

Boyd shook hands with his two Court-appointed attorneys, thanking them, and smiling. He also smiled at his sister as he walked to the door of the courtroom. Moments later he was on his way back to the County Jail, a cigarette in his mouth.

Boyd has been at the jail since Nov. 21 where he went voluntarily to undergo a test on a polygraph machine—lie detector. It was following the test that he admitted killing his wife whose body had been found along the isolated lane Nov. 15—10 days after the slaying.

The discovery of the body was apparently made by an anonymous hunter who phoned city police, telling of his find and saying his name was Roger Smith and he would meet officers at the site.

Remains Unidentified

"Roger Smith" never showed up, and remains unknown today.

On the jury in the trial were Mrs. Mary Mullen of Manor Ln. and Mildred Larcombe, 420 W. 5th St., Mrs. Jolen Peller of Hillcrest Rd., Wellsville; Rachel McCauley, 612 Commerce St., Wellsville; Evelyn Copestick of East Liverpool R. D. 2, and Harriett Edgerton, Annruth Everhart, Florence Earley, Avon Heltman, Jeannette Kells and George Huston of Salem, Alice Crawford of Lisbon R. D. 3 and Shirley Harman of East Palestine R. D. 1 were alternates.

Vaccine

come close to the goal of 90,000 persons treated countywide.

Dr. Fisher said he expects four times as many to show up Saturday.

Many infants from 6½ to 7 weeks old were brought to the Westgate clinic and the oldest among the adults was a man, 90.

The society had advised residents the vaccine — mixed with distilled water and taken from a paper cup — was tasteless and Dr. Fisher said recipients reported no after-taste.

He said a large number of families — many with up to five children and parents — reported for the immunization. The society had appealed for families to receive the protection.

The preparation is a live virus vaccine which has been modified or weakened for producing immunity without causing illness.

That administered this week is against the Type I polio virus. The program will continue later with vaccine for the Type II and Type III virus.

Three heavyweight boxing champions, Dempsey, Tunney, and Louis, earned more than two million dollars with their fists.

Geneva

the conference leaders, was immediately supported by Italy and Canada. Like Britain they are close U.S. allies and would probably not have acted without some word to Rusk about their plans.

Diplomats who were informed on the closed meeting said that the brief discussion by Foreign Secretary Howard C. Green of Canada and Carlo Russo, Italian undersecretary of state, was bluntly to the point of big power failure and insisted on action by the rest of the conference membership. Tello then ordered the informal afternoon meeting, saying that was the sense of the conference.

On the nuclear test breakdown, Tsarapkin said on leaving the meeting at the Palace of Nations that no agreement is possible "except on the basis of national control."

"Any kind of international control is out of the question," he asserted.

Gromyko insisted that the Soviet Union's proposed plan for total disarmament in four years should be accepted as the basis for the conference negotiations. Rusk demanded that the Western proposal for a start on disarmament, with thorough control measures, have equal priority with the Soviet plan.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home and several advisers met with Gromyko and a number of top Soviet diplomats at the Russians' villa.

Informants reported afterward that they made no progress whatever toward reconciling differences on any of the issues. They said Gromyko stressed particularly that the Soviet Union is standing firm on its demands for a change in the status of West Berlin, for Western acceptance of East Berlin as the capital of East Germany, and for separate peace treaties with East and West Germany.

Barring some unexpected change in Soviet policy, the Big Three foreign ministers seemed determined to leave Geneva next week with nothing accomplished to improve East-West relations.

Fight Waged By Frondizi For Coalition

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi struggled today to put together a coalition government to deal with a nationwide strike threatened by supporters of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron.

The nation's military officers were divided over whether Frondizi should remain in office. Peronists threatened violence.

Frondizi found little immediate support from the politicians to help him combat rising Peronist opposition. Leading anti-Peron politicians harshly rejected his first attempts to bring them into a "coalition Cabinet of national unity" imposed on him by the military.

Leaders of 62 pro-Peron labor unions called a general strike of nearly two million workers for Friday and warned that the nationwide walkout would continue until Frondizi rescinded his decree wiping out the Peronist victories in parliamentary and provincial elections last Sunday.

Officials of the Roman Catholic Church reportedly were trying to pacify labor leaders and have them call of the strike. The last major strike here, stemming from one of Frondizi's austerity measures, resulted in bombings of buses and street fighting.

Thirty-two unions said they would not strike but made clear their sentiments, asserting "the reason for our troubles is Frondizi." The powerful General Confederation of Labor, mother organization of all the unions, did not immediately endorse the walkout.

The underground "Supreme Council of the Peronista party" issued a manifesto urging working people to resist Frondizi's nullification order. "We will resort to violence if necessary," the council declared.

Despite the setbacks, Frondizi was reported feeling assured that a solution to the four-day crisis was near. Buenos Aires Mayor Hernan Giralt, Frondizi's emissary in negotiations with the military chiefs, announced after a series of conferences at government house that his mission was over.

Protocol officers assured newsmen that Frondizi would be on hand this evening to welcome Britain's visiting Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II.

Frondizi's insistence on sticking to his unpopular austerity program, which was generally blamed for his election setback, appeared a major obstacle to his forming a coalition Cabinet.

Peronists stepped up their clamor for the return of the ex-dictator from his exile in Spain, declaring it is "the only way to secure peace in Argentina."

'Eager' Beaver Tries Land Travel

East Liverpool police and a Pennsylvania trucker learned a first-hand lesson about the legendary persistence of beavers Wednesday night in a contest of wills that led indirectly to a traffic mishap.

When it was all over the huge beaver had won a moral victory, at least, against man and was back in his natural habitat along the Ohio River bank.

It all began about 11 last night as Carl Leighgeber of New Galilee, Pa., driving west on the River Rd. noted a big animal headed in his direction along the highway, not yielding an inch to the oncoming tractor-trailer.

Rather than run over the animal, Leighgeber halted his rig, but the beaver scuttled underneath. Patrolman Paul Blevins, who had been a short distance behind in a cruiser, pulled alongside to find why the rig had halted.

The officer and the trucker checked underneath and found a huge beaver crouched there, refusing to come out. About that time Patrolman Kenneth Mooney arrived on the scene in another cruiser. He joined the beaver "task force."

Leighgeber finally got a rope around the reluctant beaver, western style, and hoisted him onto the bed of the stake-body trailer. But once on the truck, the beaver refused to budge again. The patrolmen radioed Lt. Clyde W. Boso at headquarters for suggestions.

The lieutenant suggested that the three men attempt to place the animal in a box and take it to headquarters. Instead they took it to the station, riding in the big trailer.

Leighgeber explained he is a member of a Pennsylvania sportsmen's club that operates a big private lake. He proposed to take the beaver to the lake and release it. Lt. Boso telephoned R. L. Lide, county game protector, and was advised the beaver should be returned to his natural habitat.

Patrolman Paul Carter escorted Leighgeber's rig to the Milliron Co. lot on the riverfront below E. 2nd St. The two men finally forced the beaver off the flatbed trailer and toward the river. The beaver took to the water and was last seen near the shoreline.

While Leighgeber's rig was halted on the River Rd., it was struck by an eastbound 1952 sedan driven by William B. Croxall, 16, of 1621 Alpha St.

The glancing blow damaged the right front fender of the auto, but there was no damage to the rig, police said. Officers cited Croxall to Juvenile Court for failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

Croxall told police he was headed east about 35 miles an hour and did not see the halted rig or an officer with a light about 50 yards east of the truck, police said.

Rep. Brown To Cite Threat Of Ohio Fund In Floor Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Ohio Republican congressman planned to take the House floor today to bring to attention what he calls a Labor Department threat to deprive his state of $17 million.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown charged that the Labor Department insists it will cut off that amount in annual federal unemployment compensation funds for Ohio if the state does not change two procedural rules. Brown says the state can't change those rules because "there is nothing in Ohio law that provides for them."

Brown's Ohio colleagues, Reps. Samuel L. Devine and William M. McCulloch, also spoke out on the subject when 10 of the state's GOP House members met a news conference.

The GOP spokesmen said officials of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation had complied with 15 of 17 rules changes on appeal procedures required by the Labor Department. Brown said the federal department has refused to go to court to settle those in dispute and "didn't give the Ohio Legislature an opportunity to act" to change applicable state laws.

Chief issue, the group said, is a Labor Department demand that provision be made for disqualifying members of the state's Board of Review when challenged in appeals cases.

Lisbon Driver Cited In Wrong-Lane Stop

Samuel Ronshak, 34, of Lisbon R. D. 3 was cited by the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon Wednesday after his car—stopped on the highway in the wrong lane—was struck by another auto on the Elkton-West Point Rd.

Officers said Ronshak's car stopped and headed north in the south-bound lane about 1¼ miles north of Route 30, was hit by an auto operated by Kay V. Glenn, 24, of Elkton.

The woman was headed south down a steep hill when she saw the other auto, applied the brakes but skidded into the Ronshak car, officers said.

Ronshak was charged with parking on the highway. No one was injured, the patrol reported.

Map Reading Shown For Civil Air Patrol

A class on sectional map reading was conducted by Vaughn McMorrow at a meeting of the area Civil Air Patrol Wednesday night at Wellsville High School.

A 90-minute marching drill was held and Michael Mato of Toronto, squadron commander, reviewed the history of CAP.

The group will go to Youngstown Sunday to receive further marching instruction, preparatory to competing in a contest at Akron late April.

Seven senior advisors and 20 cadets attended. Maj. O. K. Brown of Alliance will attend the meeting next Wednesday at the school. The drill will be at 6 followed by regular business at 7.

Out Of The Air

By ALAN GILL

The Voice Talks About Himself

"This is Alexander Scourby," the voice said, and I darned near dropped the phone. Mr. Scourby speaks with a resonance you somehow associate with Judgment Day — measured, precise and with awesome finality. He is, after all, our finest television narrator.

Alan Gill

Couple of days after the call, I had lunch with Mr. Scourby and his wife, Lori March. He turned out to be an un-Jove-like fellow with coal-black eyelids, eyes light as water, a nose of Dick Tracy classicism, and a blue jaw you could strike a match on. Miss March is blonde, nifty and a lady.

-:-

"I'M NOT a voice," Mr. Scourby said, "I'm an actor!"

The protest is justified, because the chances are you know Scourby simply as television's sonorous speaker of history, from "The Coming of Christ" to the fall of Hitler.

On Palm Sunday, April 15, his will be the voice behind the story of Christ's passion and death in a "Project 20" program called "He Is Risen"—a combination of art and music, spoken voice and scriptural record.

You may have seen Scourby week before last in one of his rare acting—rather than narrating—assignments, on "Circle Theater." He was Abe Rothstein, a Jew hidden away from the Nazis by a Polish Catholic farmer.

Next Saturday afternoon, if you're alert, you'll see him on "Accent," all decked out as Alexander Hamilton (Channel 8, 1:30 p.m.). Lori March, by the way, will play Mrs. Hamilton.

"Television women," she said, "just stand around. If you're in period costume, you sweep around. And with those long skirts dragging the floor, you get dirty legs. Look for dirty legs on the subway: You'll know you're looking at an actress."

Her husband—a man who has played Ivanov in "Darkness at Noon" and Cauchon to Uta Hagen's "St. Joan"—is these days less a Broadway star than a television voice. And voice is what we naturally talked about.

"I started out with a Brooklyn accent," he said, "but I got it knocked out of me. Then I went for a while to the University of West Virginia and came back saying kyow for cow.

"I'm forever picking up the patterns of speech of the people I'm with. In a cross-country trip last year, I ran the gamut of dialects. But I was always a few hundred miles behind myself.

"In Ohio, I was still talking Nevadan. 'Hullo there,' someone would say. I'd say, 'Howdy.'

-:-

"I'M A PRETTY GOOD dialectician, but I try not to overdo it. In the first days shooting in a movie I made—I was the bad guy in a cowboy picture and saying things like, 'Git off this hyar range, stranger'—it all came out sounding like Robert Morley. I reverted to pure Western pronto.

"I don't take care of my voice at all. I smoke inordinately, and shout for taxis. For the past 25 years or more, I've been reading books for the blind, making hundreds of records of everything from Saroyan to Milton.

"Have I ever put myself to sleep reading? Sure. I doze off and go right on with it. Once, when I was recording the Bible, I dropped off into a dream—about my childhood, I guess it was. I came suddenly awake saying 'Brooklyn' for 'Bethlehem,' which rather shattered the mood of the thing, I thought.

-:-

"I ENJOY reading aloud. I'd like to do a series some day on famous travel writings—Boswell, 'Travels With a Donkey,' 'The Sea and the Jungle,' stuff like that—with contemporary illustrations of the places.

"Maybe it wouldn't stand a chance on anything but educational television, but I'd like to do it.

"But remember," he said again, "I'm not a voice. I'd chuck all the narration jobs for a good stage play in a minute."

I pictured him, I told him, more in a distinguished role than as a character doing cartwheels.

"Ha!" he said, in that Judgment Day voice of his, "you ought to see me do cartwheels!"

Posters Issued On Safe Kite Use

A four-color poster on kite flying is being distributed to organizations in the area by Ohio Power Co. in its annual campaign to promote safety in the popular spring sport.

Posters listing safety precautions which should be observed by persons flying kites are being distributed to schools, scout groups and other youth organizations, according to W. E. Williams, District Manager.

He said kites should always be flown in open spaces and away from electric wires and other obstructions.

Wire or tinsel cord should never be used for kite string and no metal of any type should be used in construction of a kite. Kites should not be flown in wet weather when the string could become a conductor of electricity, and youngsters should be cautioned not to climb a tree or pole to retrieve a kite.

He urged parents, teachers and youth leaders to help by informing children about the potential dangers in kite flying.

GOP Aspirant Cites Cleveland Problems

LORAIN, Ohio (AP)—Seth Taft, a Republican candidate for state senator from Cleveland, says Cleveland has learned how to clear slums and rebuild them but has met tougher, unsolved problems in the process.

Taft, an attorney for the Cleveland Development Foundation, told the Lorain County Bar Association Wednesday night: "Clearance is but a small part of the total process, and when an area is cleared it cannot be rehabilitated for the same people who lived there before. We must find ways to stop overcrowding and make use of older housing.

Cleveland, Gas Firm Far Apart On Rate Accord

CLEVELAND (AP)—City officials and the East Ohio Gas Co. were reported far from agreement as htey prepared to meet today to discuss a proposed rate hike for the utility.

A gas company source was quoted by the Cleveland Plain Dealer as saying East Ohio would bring in $7.2 million a year in additional revenues.

The latest company proposal would bring $20 million additional revenue from residential customers and would increase the average household bill about $1.88 a month, according to East Ohio. An additional $850,000 would come from industrial users.

Cleveland and a group of other Northeastern Ohio cities are fighting the East Ohio request.

"We told the city at the last session we could not possibly accept its proposal," the unnamed East Ohio source was quoted as saying. "We haven't heard anything further from the mayor or Council. We'll go to City Hall . . . to see what they have to say."

The Plain Dealer said it appeared the company is not prepared to deviate very far, if at all, from its latest proposal. Company officials would not confirm the report.

If no agreement can be reached with city officials, East Ohio says it will take the rate request to the Utilities Commission. It reportedly would take at least two years to get the request through the commission.

Out Of The Air

By ALAN GILL

The Voice Talks About Himself

"This is Alexander Scourby," the voice said, and I darned near dropped the phone. Mr. Scourby speaks with a resonance you somehow associate with Judgment Day — measured, precise and with awesome finality. He is, after all, our finest television narrator.

Alan Gill

Couple of days after the call, I had lunch with Mr. Scourby and his wife, Lori March. He turned out to be an un-Jove-like fellow with coal-black eyelids, eyes light as water, a nose of Dick Tracy classicism, and a blue jaw you could strike a match on. Miss March is blonde, nifty and a lady.

-:-

"I'M NOT a voice," Mr. Scourby said, "I'm an actor!"

The protest is justified, because the chances are you know Scourby simply as television's sonorous speaker of history, from "The Coming of Christ" to the fall of Hitler.

On Palm Sunday, April 15, his will be the voice behind the story of Christ's passion and death in a "Project 20" program called "He Is Risen"—a combination of art and music, spoken voice and scriptural record.

You may have seen Scourby week before last in one of his rare acting—rather than narrating—assignments, on "Circle Theater." He was Abe Rothstein, a Jew hidden away from the Nazis by a Polish Catholic farmer.

Next Saturday afternoon, if you're alert, you'll see him on "Accent," all decked out as Alexander Hamilton (Channel 8, 1:30 p.m.). Lori March, by the way, will play Mrs. Hamilton.

"Television women," she said, "just stand around. If you're in period costume, you sweep around. And with those long skirts dragging the floor, you get dirty legs. Look for dirty legs on the subway: You'll know you're looking at an actress."

Her husband—a man who has played Ivanov in "Darkness at Noon" and Cauchon to Uta Hagen's "St. Joan"—is these days less a Broadway star than a television voice. And voice is what we naturally talked about.

"I started out with a Brooklyn accent," he said, "but I got it knocked out of me. Then I went for a while to the University of West Virginia and came back saying kyow for cow.

"I'm forever picking up the patterns of speech of the people I'm with. In a cross-country trip last year, I ran the gamut of dialects. But I was always a few hundred miles behind myself.

"In Ohio, I was still talking Nevadan. 'Hullo there,' someone would say. I'd say, 'Howdy.'

-:-

"I'M A PRETTY GOOD dialectician, but I try not to overdo it. In the first days shooting in a movie I made—I was the bad guy in a cowboy picture and saying things like, 'Git off this hyar range, stranger'—it all came out sounding like Robert Morley. I reverted to pure Western pronto.

"I don't take care of my voice at all. I smoke inordinately, and shout for taxis. For the past 25 years or more, I've been reading books for the blind, making hundreds of records of everything from Saroyan to Milton.

"Have I ever put myself to sleep reading? Sure. I doze off and go right on with it. Once, when I was recording the Bible, I dropped off into a dream—about my childhood, I guess it was. I came suddenly awake saying 'Brooklyn' for 'Bethlehem,' which rather shattered the mood of the thing, I thought.

-:-

"I ENJOY reading aloud. I'd like to do a series some day on famous travel writings—Boswell, 'Travels With a Donkey,' 'The Sea and the Jungle,' stuff like that—with contemporary illustrations of the places.

"Maybe it wouldn't stand a chance on anything but educational television, but I'd like to do it.

"But remember," he said again, "I'm not a voice. I'd chuck all the narration jobs for a good stage play in a minute."

I pictured him, I told him, more in a distinguished role than as a character doing cartwheels.

"Ha!" he said, in that Judgment Day voice of his, "you ought to see me do cartwheels!"

Cleveland, Gas Firm Far Apart On Rate Accord

CLEVELAND (AP)—City officials and the East Ohio Gas Co. were reported far from agreement as htey prepared to meet today to discuss a proposed rate hike for the utility.

A gas company source was quoted by the Cleveland Plain Dealer as saying East Ohio would bring in $7.2 million a year in additional revenues.

The latest company proposal would bring $20 million additional revenue from residential customers and would increase the average household bill about $1.88 a month, according to East Ohio. An additional $850,000 would come from industrial users.

Cleveland and a group of other Northeastern Ohio cities are fighting the East Ohio request.

"We told the city at the last session we could not possibly accept its proposal," the unnamed East Ohio source was quoted as saying. "We haven't heard anything further from the mayor or Council. We'll go to City Hall . . . to see what they have to say."

The Plain Dealer said it appeared the company is not prepared to deviate very far, if at all, from its latest proposal. Company officials would not confirm the report.

If no agreement can be reached with city officials, East Ohio says it will take the rate request to the Utilities Commission. It reportedly would take at least two years to get the request through the commission.

Health Officials Get Beagles Who Bit Boys

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Two beagles that bit three Boy Scouts at Van Buren Lake State Park have been turned over to Hancock County health authorities.

Preliminary observation by a veterinarian indicated the dogs probably are not rabid, and the three 11-year-old Findlay boys likely won't have to underto antirabies shots as was first feared.

Pakistan President Takes Jackie To Horse Show

Delighted at the gift, Jacqueline Kennedy said she was worried about how the animal would get back to the United States. Officials told her the 10-year-old bay gelding, named Sardar or Chief—would travel by an American military plane.

The plane will also pick up the two tiger cubs she got in India Wednesday.

Mrs. Kennedy said she hoped the horse would not get airsick.

Pakistan was giving the U.S. First Lady royal treatment. It was a school and government office holiday Wednesday when she arrived from neutralist India to begin a 4½-day visit to this Asian ally of the United States. Officials declared another holiday today so children and workers could see her drive about the city.

Tens of thousands lined the flag-draped streets as she went to the stadium for the final day of the Lahore Horse and Cattle Show. There she joined Ayub Khan and West Pakistan Governor Malik Amir Mohammad Khan in a carriage escorted by 38 lancers of the presidential bodyguard.

Fifty-six trumpeteers sounded a fanfare as the carriage entered the stadium. The crowd of 150,000 rose and cheered. The carriage circled the field and then drove to the reviewing stand.

President Faces Shelter Problem Right Next Door

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, who is urging a nationwide fallout shelter program, has a shelter problem right next door.

The basement of the Executive Office building, on the west side of the White House, isn't considered safe for a shelter in a nuclear emergency.

The old, gingerbread building once housed the State, War and Navy departments. Many of Kennedy's top aides are among the 1,200 federal employes who now work there.

George Viault, the building warden, says the big vaulted cellar might be fine for a shelter except for one thing—it's a maze of hot and cold water pipes. If a lot of people were huddled down there and the pipes burst, there could be a disaster.

So civil defense experts have done the best they can and marked off shelter areas on upper floors. These are in inner corridors, where the brick walls are thick and the doors strong.

Scout Cabinet Plans Dance

Plans for a dance May 11 at the Country Club were discussed by the Cherokee District Explorer Scout Cabinet Wednesday night at the cabin headquarters of Troop 59 at the Yellow Creek Presbyterian Church at Hillcrest.

Ed Carnes of Post 21 is chairman of the ball. He said the dance will be at 8:30 p. m. with music by Bob Hall's Quintet. Each Explorer and his guest are allowed to invite two extra couples.

The dance is open to all registered explorers and adults. The dress will be uniform or suit for the boys and semi-formal for his date.

Jack Amato of Post 66 presided. Eighteen attended. Guests were Jim L. McKinnon advisor of Post 7; Frank Rossi, cabinet advisor, and Robert Gray, district scout executive.

Gray reviewed the Explorer delegate conference to be held in August at the University of Michigan. Carnes and Jerry Hoskinson of Post 59 will represent the conference.

The discussion will be on the Explorer role in building character and physical fitness. Skill events and electives also will be highlighted. Several national figures will be guest speaker.

Carnes said post charter papers for re-registration of Post 21 will be completed this week.

All posts present reported merit badges had been earned last week. Membership is open to any boy 14 to 18.

Bargaining Set To Continue As Strike Looms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Their threatened strike now set tentatively for midnight Sunday, union employes of the Westinghouse Electric Co. appliance plant here were set to negotiate with management again today.

Both management and officials of Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers, said they would go back to the bargaining table at 10 a.m. for a third straight day.

The local said it is waiting for strike authorization from international headquarters to begin a walkout if there is no settlement by the end of Sunday. Earlier, the local took an affirmative strike vote among the 4,000 members and announced a Thursday midnight strike deadline. That deadline was nullified because of failure to give the company the required 72 hours' notice.

Westinghouse has questioned the union's right to strike without exhausting grievance procedures in the dispute over management's changing several refrigerator assemblers from incentive pay to straight time.

Trucker Killed In Fiery Wreck

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP)—A Pennsylvania truck driver died late Thursday night when he was trapped in the flaming wreckage of his vehicle after a collision involving two trucks and an automobile on Ohio 46, one mile south of Canfield.

The Highway Patrol identified the victim as Herbert E. Miller, 25, of New Castle.

The patrol said a tractor-trailer driven by Elwood C. Decker, 37, of Garrett, Pa., went left of center when Decker hit his brakes to avoid crashing into a car ahead of him. Decker's rig hit the car, driven by Vincent Basinger, 70, of Columbiana, Ohio, and collided with Miller's oncoming truck, officers said.

Miller was trapped in the cab when his truck burst into flames and exploded. Decker and Basinger escaped with minor injuries, the patrol said.

The patrol charged Decker with manslaughter and he was released on $1,500 bond.

Ohio Supreme Court Backs OHSAA Ban On McKinley

Ruling To Leave Canton School Without Grid Sport Next Fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's Supreme Court has given the Ohio High School Athletic Association its wholehearted endorsement, and Canton McKinley High School almost surely will have no interscholastic football next fall.

The high court issued a writ of prohibition Wednesday that prevents Stark County Common Pleas Court from interfering with the OHSAA's one-year suspension of McKinley from the gridiron.

At the same time it issued the writ, the Supreme Court served strong notice on Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy that it shows little sympathy toward his pending suit seeking to have the OHSAA disbanded in favor of government regulation of schoolboy sports.

The writ was approved 6-0. It knocks out the Stark County court's temporary injunction against the suspension. The court said it also bans a hearing by the trial court on Stark County Prosecutor Norman J. Putman's request for a permanent restrainer.

The writ was sought by 45 school boards and nine OHSAA officials against whom the injunction was issued. The OHSAA has 1,500 junior and senior high schools as members.

The case stemmed from a complaint by Supt. H. W. McKelvey of Portsmouth schools last August that Canton McKinley violated the athletic association's "undue influence" rule. Portsmouth charged that McKinley, or its boosters, moved two football-playing brothers and their parents to Canton in advance of the 1961 season.

The OHSAA's Board of Control found McKinley guilty, declared both brothers ineligible and clamped on the suspension.

The Supreme Court said, in effect, that all members of the OHSAA join the organization with their eyes wide open—with knowledge of its rules and penalties. The court said the law gives school boards discretionary authority on affairs of such nature as approving membership of public schools in their districts in the OHSAA.

"A court has no authority to control the discretion vested in a board of education by the statutes of this state or to substitute its judgement for the judgment of such board, upon any question the board is authorized by law to determine," the Supreme Court declared.

The court noted that the OHSAA is an unincorporated voluntary association not for profit. It said boards of education renew membership on a year to year basis and noted that Canton McKinley's last renewal was entered into in September 1961.

Signed by Paul A. Schott, McKinley's administrative head, the membership agreement read: "I hereby agree that the . . . school will conduct its athletics for the year 1961-62 in accordance with th econstitution, rules, bylaws, interpretations and decisions of the . . . association."

A chief argument of Putman and others in earlier hearings was that McKinley's students are "innocent scapegoats" of the suspension. Putman said, "The guilty adult will never be penalized."

The Supreme Court decision, written by Judge C. William O'Neill, said:

"The respondents do not allege any mistake, fraud or collusion. The complaint of the respondents is that the penalty imposed by the association is too harsh. There is no allegation that it is arbitrary or any contention that it is not one provided for by the constitution and rules of the association. If fact, the uncontroverted allegations, that a hearing was held, that, following the imposition of a penalty, a rehearing was granted, that everybody who wanted to be heard was heard, and that the penalty was affirmed, indicate that in no way was the action arbitrary.

"To support the claim that the penalty is too harsh, respondents argue that students of Canton McKinley High School will be denied the opportunity to see their high school football team play in the fall of 1962, and that Canton McKinley High School's band will be denied the opportunity to march and perform before the spectators at Canton McKinley High School games in the fall of 1962. These assertions do not constitute grounds for the issuance of a court injunction.

"The penalty imposed by the association is indeed harsh and most severe. However, in the absence of mistake, fraud, collusion or arbitrariness, the decision of the association will be accepted by the court . . . .

"This court rejects the contention made by the respondents and suggested by the Attorney General that government regulation of interscholastic athletics in the public schools is desirable and a virtual necessity. It is admitted by all parties to this action that the association has performed an excellent task in the supervision and control of interscholastic athletics for more than half a century in this state. There is nothing, of which this court can take official notice, to indicate that either politicians or bureaucrats in control of interscholastic athletics could perform the task as well as the school officials of the association have done. . . .

". . . . If the restraining order of the Court of Common Pleas of Stark County is allowed to stand, the whole system of supervision and control of interscholastic athletics in Ohio will be in jeopardy.

This situation would continue for an indefinite period of time, during which there would be no effective supervision or control, and, as a result of this, such a damaging blow to clean athletics at the secondary school level could occur that interscholastic competition, as we have known it, would be destroyed."

Cousy Says He'll Play Next Year

BOSTON (AP)—Bob Cousy has bad news for the rest of the National Basketball Association. He'll be back for another season with the world champion Boston Celtics.

A veteran—at 33—of a dozen years in the physically exhausting NBA, the 6-foot-1 floor general and court magician decided Wednesday after talking it over with the boss, Walter Brown, to play one more year.

"If Walter wants me to return for another season I'll do it," Cousy said before the conference. "I owe him that much."

The former Holy Cross star had been mulling over two other possibilities: staying with the Celtics in a front office job or leaving pro basketball to coach the sport at Boston College.

Though Cousy did not admit it, it was believed the BC post was his for the asking.

It was believed that the non-playing Boston job would have been a combination of scouting and public relations work for the Celtics, who despite their three consecutive NBA championships are not particularly good gate attractions in Boston.

"I guess you fellows will have to watch me running up and down the court for another season," the Cooz grinningly cracked to writers as he and Brown emerged from the 90-minute conference in Brown's office.

Though Cousy has been mentioned as a logical successor to Celtics Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach, Bob has said in the past that he would prefer to become a college coach—preferably in the Boston area or near Worcester, where he lives.

Semi-Final Meetings Set Tonight

Duquesne, Loyola Carry Underdog Roles In NIT

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP)—Sophomore-sparked Dayton and senior-paced St. John's carry the favorite roles tonight in the semifinals of the National Invitation Basketball Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The Ohio Flyers, seeking their first NIT title in 10 tries, are slim picks over hustling Loyola of Chicago, which also leans on first-year men. The home town Redmen, out for their fourth NIT crown, are granted a larger edge over a sound Duquesne team in the second half of the double-header.

The first game goes at 7:30 p.m., EST, the second at 9:30 p.m.

Dayton, five times runner-up in this tournament, has its work cut out against Loyola. The Flyers swamped Wichita and Houston on the way to the semis, largely on the inspired play of sophomores Bill Chmielewski, 6-foot-10, and Gordie Hatton, 6-foot-1.

The rugged Chmielewski has 56 points in two outings. He also chipped in with fine rebounding and feeding. Hatton, with 43 points, is the team floor leader as well. Garry Roggenburk, Hal Schoen, and Tom Hatton, Gordie's older brother, round out the fine cast.

The Loyola Ramblers, who drew a bye in the first round, also were impressive in dumping a solid Temple team, 75-64 in the quarter-finals. Their pell-mell attack features four sophs, including 6-foot-6 Vic Rouse, who leaps like a 7-footer.

The nation's scoring leaders, the Ramblers ran and run and aren't afraid to pop the ball up.

St. John's and Duquesne are more deliberate. The Redmen feature 6-foot-10 Leroy Ellis, outstanding player in the metropolitan area.

Despite a weak bench, St. John's produced a superb effort in knocking out Holy Cross Tuesday night, moving the ball until the right shot came along.

Duquesne collected the scalps of Navy and nationally ranked Bradley en route to the semis. The Dukes lack height but not poise, much of which is provided by sophomore Willie Somerset, a 5-foot-10 take charge guy.

Cincy Faces California Team; Wake Forest, OSU In Opener

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A team noted for its alertness, UCLA, may turn out to be the sleeper in the National Collegiate (NCAA) Basketball Championships that move into the showdown stage at spacious Freedom Hall Friday night.

The Uclans (18-9) champions of the Far West regional eliminations, play defending national champion Cincinnati (27-2) in the second game of a semifinal doubleheader that opens with top-ranked Ohio State (25-1) meeting Wake Forest (21-8).

No one who remembers the way another West Coast sleeper, California, came from out of the also-rans to win the national title the last time the championships were held in Louisville — in 1959 — is overlooking the Bruins.

Their record? Forget it. They lost seven of their first 11 games. They've traveled at a 14-2 pace since.

Their lack of height, which shows 6-foot-5, 230-pound Fred Slaughter as the over-all biggest man among the front liners? Forget that, too. In winning the Far West regional at Provo, Utah, they disposed of the biggest team in the NCAA tournament—Oregon State, with 7-foot-1 Mel Counts—by the tidy score of 88-69.

Their low national ranking? They were rated third best in the Big Five conference in pre-season estimates, yet here they are only two victories away from the national championship.

"I've never been so proud of a team in my life," Coach John Wooden said.

Coach Ed Jucker of Cincinnati remembers too well what California did in the 1959 tournament (he was an assistant when unsung Cal beat the Bearcats in the national semifinals) to underrate any team that has come this far.

"I learned my lesson then," he said. "You don't underestimate any team at this stage."

As the nation's coaches began streaming into town for the games and the concurrent meetings, most were talking of an anticipated rematch of last year's championship — in which Cincinnati upset unbeaten Ohio State 70-65 in overtime.

The Buckeyes and their great three-time All-America, Jerry Lucas, beat Wake Forest 84-62 at Wake Forest in December and polished off UCLA 105-84 in the Los Angeles Classic a few days later. But the Deacons, like UCLA, found themselves late—winning their last 12 after standing 9-8 at mid-season.

Bucks-Wake Forest Game On Channel 7

The Ohio State-Wake Forest NCAA tournament game from Louisville, Ky., will be televised by Channel 7 (Wheeling) Friday night beginning at 7:30. If Ohio State wins Friday, the championship game will begin Saturday at 9 p. m.

Fourteen teams were entered in the junior high school WPIAL volleyball tournament being played today at Midland's new gymnasium with John Wilson, Midland junior high coach, as one of the tournament chairmen.

The teams include Midland, New Kensington Ridge, Parnassus of New Kensington, Beaver Falls, Castle Shannon, Lower Burrell, Fox Chapel, Homestead, Plum Boro, Homeville, Ambridge, Calhoun, Rochester and East Deer Frasier.

Each pair of teams play the best two out of three. Members of the winning teams will receive gold awards and their school a championship trophy while the runnerup team members will receive silver awards.

The committee also includes Kenneth Hobough, the other tournament chairman, and Carl H. Brickner, league chairman.

Steers Made Runaway, Won't Vie In Playoffs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Steers made the American Basketball League's first race such a runaway that the league won't go through the motions of a championship playoff for the second half of the season.

Instead, the other six teams will vie in a kind of round-robin tournament and the winner will tackle the Steers for the grand championship.

Ken Krueger, owner of the Steers, announced the arrangement and said the process will start at Pittsburgh next Wednesday night.

There will be a second round in Pittsburgh March 29, another at an undetermined site March 30 and the windup will come in Kansas City March 31. Details of the tournament will be worked out at a league meeting in Chicago Saturday.

The winner and the Steers will collide in the first two games of a best-of-five series April 1 and 3 at Kansas City.

The Steers ran their second-half record to 24-13 Wednesday night with a 110-101 victory over the New York Tapers. This gave them a six-game bulge on San Francisco in the Western Division and four games on Cleveland, leader in the Eastern Division.

The Steers easily took the first-half championship in the Western Division and beat Cleveland in a playoff.

Cleveland made it six straight by beating Pittsburgh 124-102 in the other league game Wednesday night.

BOSTON (AP) — If Boston Bruins coach Phil Watson ever has wanted to win a National Hockey League game, tonight's with the New York Rangers at Boston Garden is it.

Ohio Supreme Court Backs OHSAA Ban On McKinley

Ruling To Leave Canton School Without Grid Sport Next Fall

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's Supreme Court has given the Ohio High School Athletic Association its wholehearted endorsement, and Canton McKinley High School almost surely will have no interscholastic football next fall.

The high court issued a writ of prohibition Wednesday that prevents Stark County Common Pleas Court from interfering with the OHSAA's one-year suspension of McKinley from the gridiron.

At the same time it issued the writ, the Supreme Court served strong notice on Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy that it shows little sympathy toward his pending suit seeking to have the OHSAA disbanded in favor of government regulation of schoolboy sports.

The writ was approved 6-0. It knocks out the Stark County court's temporary injunction against the suspension. The court said it also bans a hearing by the trial court on Stark County Prosecutor Norman J. Putman's request for a permanent restrainer.

The writ was sought by 45 school boards and nine OHSAA officials against whom the injunction was issued. The OHSAA has 1,500 junior and senior high schools as members.

The case stemmed from a complaint by Supt. H. W. McKelvey of Portsmouth schools last August that Canton McKinley violated the athletic association's "undue influence" rule. Portsmouth charged that McKinley, or its boosters, moved two football-playing brothers and their parents to Canton in advance of the 1961 season.

The OHSAA's Board of Control found McKinley guilty, declared both brothers ineligible and clamped on the suspension.

The Supreme Court said, in effect, that all members of the OHSAA join the organization with their eyes wide open—with knowledge of its rules and penalties. The court said the law gives school boards discretionary authority on affairs of such nature as approving membership of public schools in their districts in the OHSAA.

"A court has no authority to control the discretion vested in a board of education by the statutes of this state or to substitute its judgement for the judgment of such board, upon any question the board is authorized by law to determine," the Supreme Court declared.

The court noted that the OHSAA is an unincorporated voluntary association not for profit. It said boards of education renew membership on a year to year basis and noted that Canton McKinley's last renewal was entered into in September 1961.

Signed by Paul A. Schott, McKinley's administrative head, the membership agreement read: "I hereby agree that the . . . school will conduct its athletics for the year 1961-62 in accordance with th econstitution, rules, bylaws, interpretations and decisions of the . . . association."

A chief argument of Putman and others in earlier hearings was that McKinley's students are "innocent scapegoats" of the suspension. Putman said, "The guilty adult will never be penalized."

The Supreme Court decision, written by Judge C. William O'Neill, said:

"The respondents do not allege any mistake, fraud or collusion. The complaint of the respondents is that the penalty imposed by the association is too harsh. There is no allegation that it is arbitrary or any contention that it is not one provided for by the constitution and rules of the association. If fact, the uncontroverted allegations, that a hearing was held, that, following the imposition of a penalty, a rehearing was granted, that everybody who wanted to be heard was heard, and that the penalty was affirmed, indicate that in no way was the action arbitrary.

"To support the claim that the penalty is too harsh, respondents argue that students of Canton McKinley High School will be denied the opportunity to see their high school football team play in the fall of 1962, and that Canton McKinley High School's band will be denied the opportunity to march and perform before the spectators at Canton McKinley High School games in the fall of 1962. These assertions do not constitute grounds for the issuance of a court injunction.

"The penalty imposed by the association is indeed harsh and most severe. However, in the absence of mistake, fraud, collusion or arbitrariness, the decision of the association will be accepted by the court . . . .

"This court rejects the contention made by the respondents and suggested by the Attorney General that government regulation of interscholastic athletics in the public schools is desirable and a virtual necessity. It is admitted by all parties to this action that the association has performed an excellent task in the supervision and control of interscholastic athletics for more than half a century in this state. There is nothing, of which this court can take official notice, to indicate that either politicians or bureaucrats in control of interscholastic athletics could perform the task as well as the school officials of the association have done. . . .

". . . . If the restraining order of the Court of Common Pleas of Stark County is allowed to stand, the whole system of supervision and control of interscholastic athletics in Ohio will be in jeopardy.

This situation would continue for an indefinite period of time, during which there would be no effective supervision or control, and, as a result of this, such a damaging blow to clean athletics at the secondary school level could occur that interscholastic competition, as we have known it, would be destroyed."

Miami Open Starts Today

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — Gusty winds were forecast during the opening round of the $50,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament today, but a great par-busting performance still was expected from a crack field of touring pros.

Playing in similar conditions Wednesday over a tough, 7,028-yard layout recently chopped out of swampy farmland, 14 pros trimmed one to four strokes off par 72 despite the tricky winds.

Billy Maxwell and Mason Rudolph tied at 68 in the 18-hole pro-amateur tuneup.

The colorful veteran, Sam Snead, making only his second tournament appearance of the year, shot a 69 to tie Jacky Cupit and Bill Casper for third place.

Ben Hogan, the old master who now enters only about four tournaments a year, chose this event for his first competition of 1962.

Big Question Marks Hit Orioles' Training Camp

By MIKE RATHET

The Baltimore Orioles' prized Kiddie Korps consisted today of Chuck Estrada, a possible weekend recruit, an appendicitis case and a big fat question mark.

The 23-year-old, 6-foot-2 fireballer turned up with an inflamed shoulder earlier in the spring grind, then reported himself ready to take his turn on the mound.

He is being flown to Baltimore for X rays.

The sudden loss of Fisher, who served home run No. 60 to Roger Maris during the 1961 campaign while posting a 10-13 record with a 3.90 earned run average, left only Estrada as a full-time, able-bodied member of the Birds' big four.

Steve Barber, the club's big winner last season with 18 triumphs, is toiling for Uncle Sam, but may be available to pitch weekends. Milt Pappas, 13-9 last year, is recuperating from an emergency appendectomy and will not resume workouts until April.

The series of stunning setbacks has forced rookie Manager Billy Hitchcock to realign his starting quartet, using Estrada with veteran Hal Brown, Dick Hall and Billy Hoeft. Hoeft, acquired from Detroit, pitched five innings as the Orioles whipped the Reds 12-6 at Tampa.

Kansas City, getting strong pitching from Norm Bass and Bob Grim, edged Washington 2-1 at West Palm Beach and then announced that $125,000 bonus hurler Lew Krausse was being shipped to their minor league camp.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs shut out Cleveland 2-0 at Tucson, the New York Mets blanked Detroit 1-0 at St. Petersburg and St. Louis kept the Chicago White Sox scoreless 2-0 at Sarasota.

The New York Yankees belted Philadelphia 13-10 at Clearwater for their 10th victory in 11 games, Los Angeles' Angels blasted San Francisco 16-3 at Palm Springs, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh 4-1 at Fort Myers and Boston edged Houston 8-7 in 13 innings at Scottsdale.

The Orioles hammered 17 hits against the Reds with Marv Throneberry getting four, including two homers, and Russ Snyder chipping in with a circuit shot.

Warriors, Nats Collide Tonight In Series Final

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors meet the Syracuse Nats in Convention Hall tonight in the fifth and deciding game of a best-of-five semifinal series for the right to play Boston in the National Basketball Association Eastern Division finals.

The Warriors won the first two games but Syracuse rallied to take the next two, setting the stage for tonight's crucial contest. The winner will meet Boston, regular season champions, in a best-of-seven final series beginning Saturday afternoon at Boston Garden.

The Boston game will be nationally televised.

Meanwhile, the Detroit Pistons, who eliminated Cincinnati in the Western Division semifinals, will open a best-of-seven final series with the Los Angeles Lakers, who took first place, Saturday night. The first two games will be at Los Angeles.

Wellsville Minor Loop Discusses Tryouts

A discussion was held on tryouts when the Wellsville Minor Baseball League met Tuesday at Daw Junior High School.

The Wellsville Minor League will hold a joint meeting with the Little League on April 5 at 7:30 in Daw Junior High.

1965 Tourney Site To Be Picked By ABC

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A big item of business at the American Bowling Congress gathering here today was a scheduled meeting of the ABC directors to pick the site for the 1965 tournament.

The only outstanding performance in Wednesday's bowling was a 715 series rolled by Bob Howley of Chicago, son of the late Pete Howley, a distinguished member of the ABC Hall of Fame. It moved Howley into fourth place in the regular singles.

The two contenders for the 1965 tourney are St. Paul, Minn., and Fort Wayne, Ind., both of which are seeking return engagements.

Dallas Issue Key Factor In Pro Grid War

BALTIMORE (AP) — Clint Murchison Jr., owner of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, touched on a key issue of the American Football League's $10 million antitrust suit Wednesday as he outlined the reasons behind NFL expansion in 1960.

The 38-year-old Texas financier told U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, who is hearing the case without a jury, that the NFL's expansion into Dallas was moved ahead one year after the AFL announced plans to field a Dallas team.

He said this was done in order "to get off on even footing" with the rival AFL.

Murchison said he asked for a commitment about Dallas from NFL expansion chairman George Halas on Aug. 29, 1959, so "we could negotiate for the Cotton Bowl, and so we could dissuade Lamar (Hunt) from starting a new league, which I felt he was doing because he thought there wouldn't be an NFL franchise in Dallas."

The AFL contends the older league expanded into Dallas just as the new league was preparing to launch a team there as a part of a plan to squeeze the AFL out of the professional football business.

Murchison testified that prior to the Aug. 29 announcement Halas said the NFL would expand from 12 to 14 teams in 1961. "He (Halas) was definite about expanding into Dallas and Houston," the Cowboy owner said.

Dick Williams Is Now Off Market To Richards

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

MIAMI (AP) — Three times in the past six years Paul Richards has obtained handyman Dick Williams from another club.

And he'd probably like nothing better than to have the Baltimore Orioles infielder-outfielder for his new Houston Colts.

Williams says he saw Richards a few times just before spring training opened. They are Texas neighbors, living only 30 miles apart.

"If you ever get released you can come and play for me in Houston," Richards told Williams this winter.

Richards originally got Williams from the Brooklyn Dodgers on waivers in June, 1956.

"I hit .286 and was doing pretty good when Richards traded me to Cleveland for Jim Busby the following June," says Williams. "'I hate to let you go,' Paul told me, 'but I need a centerfielder.'

"That was June 13, 1957. That night for Cleveland I hit a home run, a double and a single off three different pitchers and beat Baltimore.

"Richards just shook his head. "The following April, Richards got me back in a five-man deal. But in October, 1958, he needed a shortstop and sent me to Kansas City for Alex Carrasquel.

"For two years with the Athletics I hit over .300 against Baltimore. Paul got me back last April but I laid a big egg for him, hitting only .206 for 64 games."

"I don't think Houston has a chance to get Williams," says Billy Hitchcock, the new Baltimore manager.

"Dick can play several spots, and play them well. I can use him at third base, first or in the outfield. He's a real valuable man."

Frick Gives Ruling On Pitchers' Gloves

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick is making sure major league pitchers don't try any hanky-panky with their gloves this year.

He has sent a telegram to all teams stating: "Rule 1.15 A states, 'The pitcher's glove shall be uniform in color and shall not be white or gray.' Please make certain no pitcher on your club uses a glove in violation of this rule."

With a white glove it would be nearly impossible for the batter to see the ball and the movement of the arm would be distracting, baseball men explained.

Miami Open Starts Today

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — Gusty winds were forecast during the opening round of the $50,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament today, but a great par-busting performance still was expected from a crack field of touring pros.

Playing in similar conditions Wednesday over a tough, 7,028-yard layout recently chopped out of swampy farmland, 14 pros trimmed one to four strokes off par 72 despite the tricky winds.

Billy Maxwell and Mason Rudolph tied at 68 in the 18-hole pro-amateur tuneup.

The colorful veteran, Sam Snead, making only his second tournament appearance of the year, shot a 69 to tie Jacky Cupit and Bill Casper for third place.

Ben Hogan, the old master who now enters only about four tournaments a year, chose this event for his first competition of 1962.

Big Question Marks Hit Orioles' Training Camp

By MIKE RATHET

The Baltimore Orioles' prized Kiddie Korps consisted today of Chuck Estrada, a possible weekend recruit, an appendicitis case and a big fat question mark.

The 23-year-old, 6-foot-2 fireballer turned up with an inflamed shoulder earlier in the spring grind, then reported himself ready to take his turn on the mound.

He is being flown to Baltimore for X rays.

The sudden loss of Fisher, who served home run No. 60 to Roger Maris during the 1961 campaign while posting a 10-13 record with a 3.90 earned run average, left only Estrada as a full-time, able-bodied member of the Birds' big four.

Steve Barber, the club's big winner last season with 18 triumphs, is toiling for Uncle Sam, but may be available to pitch weekends. Milt Pappas, 13-9 last year, is recuperating from an emergency appendectomy and will not resume workouts until April.

The series of stunning setbacks has forced rookie Manager Billy Hitchcock to realign his starting quartet, using Estrada with veteran Hal Brown, Dick Hall and Billy Hoeft. Hoeft, acquired from Detroit, pitched five innings as the Orioles whipped the Reds 12-6 at Tampa.

Kansas City, getting strong pitching from Norm Bass and Bob Grim, edged Washington 2-1 at West Palm Beach and then announced that $125,000 bonus hurler Lew Krausse was being shipped to their minor league camp.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Cubs shut out Cleveland 2-0 at Tucson, the New York Mets blanked Detroit 1-0 at St. Petersburg and St. Louis kept the Chicago White Sox scoreless 2-0 at Sarasota.

The New York Yankees belted Philadelphia 13-10 at Clearwater for their 10th victory in 11 games, Los Angeles' Angels blasted San Francisco 16-3 at Palm Springs, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat Pittsburgh 4-1 at Fort Myers and Boston edged Houston 8-7 in 13 innings at Scottsdale.

The Orioles hammered 17 hits against the Reds with Marv Throneberry getting four, including two homers, and Russ Snyder chipping in with a circuit shot.

Warriors, Nats Collide Tonight In Series Final

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Warriors meet the Syracuse Nats in Convention Hall tonight in the fifth and deciding game of a best-of-five semifinal series for the right to play Boston in the National Basketball Association Eastern Division finals.

The Warriors won the first two games but Syracuse rallied to take the next two, setting the stage for tonight's crucial contest. The winner will meet Boston, regular season champions, in a best-of-seven final series beginning Saturday afternoon at Boston Garden.

The Boston game will be nationally televised.

Meanwhile, the Detroit Pistons, who eliminated Cincinnati in the Western Division semifinals, will open a best-of-seven final series with the Los Angeles Lakers, who took first place, Saturday night. The first two games will be at Los Angeles.

Wellsville Minor Loop Discusses Tryouts

A discussion was held on tryouts when the Wellsville Minor Baseball League met Tuesday at Daw Junior High School.

Insurance plans were also aired and officers urged better attendance by parents at the Minor League meetings.

The Wellsville Minor League will hold a joint meeting with the Little League on April 5 at 7:30 in Daw Junior High.

1965 Tourney Site To Be Picked By ABC

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—A big item of business at the American Bowling Congress gathering here today was a scheduled meeting of the ABC directors to pick the site for the 1965 tournament.

The only outstanding performance in Wednesday's bowling was a 715 series rolled by Bob Howley of Chicago, son of the late Pete Howley, a distinguished member of the ABC Hall of Fame. It moved Howley into fourth place in the regular singles.

The two contenders for the 1965 tourney are St. Paul, Minn., and Fort Wayne, Ind., both of which are seeking return engagements.

Dallas Issue Key Factor In Pro Grid War

BALTIMORE (AP) — Clint Murchison Jr., owner of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, touched on a key issue of the American Football League's $10 million antitrust suit Wednesday as he outlined the reasons behind NFL expansion in 1960.

The 38-year-old Texas financier told U.S. District Court Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, who is hearing the case without a jury, that the NFL's expansion into Dallas was moved ahead one year after the AFL announced plans to field a Dallas team.

He said this was done in order "to get off on even footing" with the rival AFL.

Murchison said he asked for a commitment about Dallas from NFL expansion chairman George Halas on Aug. 29, 1959, so "we could negotiate for the Cotton Bowl, and so we could dissuade Lamar (Hunt) from starting a new league, which I felt he was doing because he thought there wouldn't be an NFL franchise in Dallas."

The AFL contends the older league expanded into Dallas just as the new league was preparing to launch a team there as a part of a plan to squeeze the AFL out of the professional football business.

Murchison testified that prior to the Aug. 29 announcement Halas said the NFL would expand from 12 to 14 teams in 1961. "He (Halas) was definite about expanding into Dallas and Houston," the Cowboy owner said.

Dick Williams Is Now Off Market To Richards

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

MIAMI (AP) — Three times in the past six years Paul Richards has obtained handyman Dick Williams from another club.

And he'd probably like nothing better than to have the Baltimore Orioles infielder-outfielder for his new Houston Colts.

Williams says he saw Richards a few times just before spring training opened. They are Texas neighbors, living only 30 miles apart.

"If you ever get released you can come and play for me in Houston," Richards told Williams this winter.

Richards originally got Williams from the Brooklyn Dodgers on waivers in June, 1956.

"I hit .288 and was doing pretty good when Richards traded me to Cleveland for Jim Busby the following June," says Williams. "'I hate to let you go,' Paul told me, 'but I need a centerfielder.'

"That was June 13, 1957. That night for Cleveland I hit a home run, a double and a single off three different pitchers and beat Baltimore.

"Richards just shook his head. 'The following April, Richards got me back in a five-man deal. But in October, 1958, he needed a shortstop and sent me to Kansas City for Alex Carrasquel.

"For two years with the Athletics I hit over .300 against Baltimore. Paul got me back last April but I laid a big egg for him, hitting only .206 for 64 games.'"

"I don't think Houston has a chance to get Williams," says Billy Hitchcock, the new Baltimore manager.

"Dick can play several spots, and play them well. I can use him at third base, first or in the outfield. He's a real valuable man."

Frick Gives Ruling On Pitchers' Gloves

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick is making sure major league pitchers don't try any hanky-panky with their gloves this year.

He has sent a telegram to all teams stating: "Rule 1.15 A states, 'The pitcher's glove shall be uniform in color and shall not be white or gray.' Please make certain no pitcher on your club uses a glove in violation of this rule."

With a white glove it would be nearly impossible for the batter to see the ball and the movement of the arm would be distracting, baseball men explained.

Educated Appetite Stabilizes Weight

Slimming fare should make for pleasant eating. When it comes to losing weight, many of you seem to have a couple of mistaken notions:

Ida Jean Kain

One that you must either stick to a rigid diet — or stay fat. Two, that the less attractive the meal the less likely you are to overeat.

Why not try a refreshing approach to weight control? Your dietitian proposes that low calorie meals should please all the senses — sight, taste, texture, aroma — everything that contributes to the feeling that you have dined well.

Meals should satisfy hunger and appease appetite without boosting calories beyond modern day fuel requirements. Tastes become keener when you substitute quality for quantity. On such fare you can enjoy good food without pangs of guilt or fear of fat.

—:—

LET'S FACE IT, fitful dieting will never be the solution to our national weight problem. Americans are not happy on diets. Faddy fare may work briefly, but not for "keeps."

But the curx of the matter is this: Diets that do nothing to educate your appetite, ignore the real issue, which is weight control.

Millions of Americans enjoy good food and ideal weight too. Having trained their appetites, they do not regard good eating as synonymous with overeating. There it is — overeating leads to embonpoint.

Weight control is 90 per cent attitude. Recognize that a certain mental-set gives power to the will. When you prefer desirable weight to eating to belt pressing proportions, that attitude governs your actions.

Not wanting to pile on pounds, you think twice and do not reach for the second hot buttered bun, or take more than one helping of any food on the menu. Nor do you routinely top off a moderate meal with 400 calories in rich dessert. You educate your appetite. By this practice weight is controlled —not by dieting, but by not overeating.

An enlightened homemaker writes: "On your protective way of eating, I find weight control a pleasure. I prefer not to call it a diet, because I think that I along with millions of others use the word too often.

"I have in the past tried all sorts of crash diets, only to regain the pounds. Your plan of not overeating has helped me to change my food habits."

—:—

SUMMED UP: Rigid dieting soon palls and you slip back into fattening fare. When you educate your appetite and eat to slim down you develop a built-in timer.

Make an all-over decision to eat for desirable weight and gradually this way of eating becomes habit—beautiful habit.

2 Firms Lose High Court Nod On Jobless Benefits

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Lorain County firm and one in Mahoning County have lost an Ohio Supreme Court decision on their contention that certain idled workers were ineligible for 1959 unemployment benefits increases.

The court held unanimously Wednesday against General Industries Co. and Youngstown Steel Tank Co. The firms had challenged the increase on grounds it imposed new burdens retroactively, after original determination of benefits became final.

Both cases involved employes laid off in early 1959. Originally awarded jobless benefits of $33 a week for 26 weeks, legal maximum at the time, they received an increase when a change in the unemployment compensation law raised the maximum to $42 a week for the unexpired portion of the 26-week period.

The Supreme Court said the revised law could not be termed retroactive because it provided only for recomputation and payment of increased benefits.

Board of Review decisions allowing the increases were upheld by common pleas courts and affirmed by Mahoning County Appellate Court in the Youngstown Steel Tank case but reversed by Lorain County Appeals Court in the General Industries case.

Among other actions wednesday, the Supreme Court:

Refused to review Sandusky County decisions favoring Steinle-Wolfe, Inc., Fremont, in a suit by the Arthur Painting Co., Akron, for $51,487 damages. The Akron firm claimed it furnished items not required in its sub-contract with the Fremont company under a $74,350 contract for painting at a Youngstown Metropolitan Housing Authority project known as Kimmel Brook Homes.

Rejected a request by Rolland Maloney to order his released on a legal technicality from Ohio Penitentiary where he is serving a life sentence as a habitual criminal from Allen County. The high court also dismissed Maloney's $500 damage suit against the prison warden for allegedly improper removal to Lima for trial under the habitual criminal indictment while serving another sentence.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I've been married only a few weeks. Pete and I get along fairly well with the exception of one thing which bothers me terribly. He has a hot temper which gets out of control when he's behind the wheel of a car.

If another driver does something to annoy him, such as pulling away from a light first, or passing him too closely, Pete will yell some ugly profanity out the window.

Sometimes the other driver doesn't like this and they have a running argument right on the street. Once a driver accidentally bumped him in the rear and Pete got out of his car and wanted to fight him.

This is embarrasing to me and I've begged him to cool off. I'm afraid one day he'll tangle with the wrong guy and get his head knocked off. What can I do?—IRISH EYES.

Dear Irish: Courtesy behind the wheel of a car can spell the difference between life and death. Drivers who vent their hostilities on other drivers often wind up in a hospital — or, worse yet, in a morgue. And sometimes they take a carload of innocent people with them.

Tell Pete to work out his anger on a golf course, on a tennis court, in a bowling alley or in a swimming pool. A mad motorist, like a mad dog, is a threat to society.

Diamond For Mother

Dear Ann: In 1959 our brother married a woman none of us cared for. I won't go into the reasons here. He died 11 months later and left her a lovely home, a car, insurance — in other words, plenty comfortable.

Before his body was hardly cold (six months after the funeral) she started to go out with other men. Our mother is very upset because this woman still wears the diamond rings our brother gave her.

Mother says that since she has no children and is conducting herself like a single girl she should give up her rings. We feel it would be nice if she gave her rings to Mother because Mother never has owned a diamond and this would make her very happy. Also this woman wasn't married long enough to deserve half of what she got — CONCERNED FAMILY.

Dear Family: If you think a diamond ring would make your Mother "very happy" why don't you all get together and buy her one?

A widow has the right to wear her rings even if she was married only five minutes. And from the tone of your letter, this paticular widow isn't going to give you vultures the time of day — so forget it.

Well Said

Dear Ann: The divorcee who signed her letter "Satisfied" should have signed it "Very Fortunate."

How many divorced women have "a small income from father's estate" and "a good job"? Under such ideal circumstances, of course, she is able to take care of herself and her children with a modest support check and no settlement.

But most mothers are like me, Ann. We must swallow hard and accept financial help from a husband who has chosen to live alone —or with another woman. It is humiliating to be dependent on a man when you know he no longer cares.

As for me, it would be infinitely easier if I didn't need my former husband's financial help, but I have no father's estate and my children are too small to leave, so I can't work full time.

So you see, Ann, not every divorcee can afford the luxury of independence. Unfortunately. I hope you'll say so. — CROWDED BOAT.

-:-

Dear Boat: YOU said so — and you said it well. Thank you.

Confidentially

TO THE CYNIC: Yes, I believe in prayer. If you haven't tried it, don't knock it.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

McElroy Hits At DiSalle On Labor Matter

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy, training his sights on the labor vote, has taken some swipes at Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's record on labor matters.

The attorney general, campaigning against DiSalle for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, has sent a letter to 850 Ohio labor leaders. In it, McElroy says DiSalle unsuccessfully tried to saddle organized labor with a "totally unnecessary 'labor reform' bill" — but "has never moved a finger to enact a state 'minimum wage' law nor a Little Wagner Act."

McElroy told the labor leaders not one of six pieces of legislation on labor's list of important bills were enacted while the governor was working with the Democratic - dominated 103rd General Assembly. Most of these pertained to elections and election registration.

McElroy claims that in his 1958 attorney general campaign he was the only candidate for state office to take a clear - cut stand against the so-called right-to-work amendment.

Ring Of Authority

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Texan with an admitted weakness for silver dollars presented St. Louis University with 405 of them when he paid his tuition. John T. Thurmond, of Dallas, said "they have an authority no other coins have."

Director Pays Surprise Visit To Cleveland Area

CLEVELAND (AP)—George R. Dick, newly appointed state liquor director, paid a surprise visit Wednesday night to what was described as one of the most highly concentrated liquor permit areas in the state—the Hough area on Cleveland's East Side.

Accompanying Dick were Ivan W. Smith, deputy director of enforcement; Fred Rose, state permit director, and John L. Kocevar, enforcement chief for the department in Cleveland.

Kocevar said the tour was made to acquaint Dick with the area.

Dick and Smith are scheduled to address the Cleveland Welfare Federation Friday on the subject of permit transfers into the Hough area. An inspection tour of state liquor stores and offices was scheduled today.

Pipeline Fight May Take Place In Congress Too

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent fight in the West Virginia Legislature over a proposed coal pipeline may soon be duplicated in Congress.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash. introduced yesterday a bill to carry out President Kennedy's proposal for aid in construction of coal pipelines. Rep. Oren Harris, D-Ark. also is drafting a bill on the subject.

A spokesman for the Interior Department said the proposed legislation would permit construction of an interstate pipeline through any state which does not now authorize condemnation suits for rights of way.

Barron Plans Japan Trip To Push State's Products

CHARLESTON (AP) — Gov. Barron will travel to Japan next month to seek increased consumption in that country of West Virginia products, principally coal.

He and nine other governors will leave April 3 under the auspices of the U.S. State Department and the National Governors' Conference, with the State Department paying the expenses.

A spokesman for the governors' conference said the purpose of the journey is "to stimulate the interchange of ideas. . .and to promote trade, travel and culture."

Barron's office said that $52.9 million in West Virginia products — most of it coal and chemicals— were exported to Japan in 1960, making the Mountain State the seventh leading supplier among the states of goods to that country.

The announcement also noted that coal officials said Australia is trying to cut in on the Japanese coal market, now dominated by West Virginia.

"West Virginia manufacturers value very highly the markets they have found for their products in Japan," Barron said. "The value of our exports have more than doubled in the last five years, with the exportation of coal and chemicals rising to more than two and a half times the 1957 value.

"West Virginia people are most appreciative of the job opportunities provided by the manufacturers producing the exported commodities."

The League of Nations, which came into existence on Jan. 10, 1920, was officially dissolved April 18, 1946.

Supreme Court Appeal

Eichmann's Counsel Asks Death Penalty Set Aside

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann's lawyer appealed to the Israeli Supreme Court today to set aside the death sentence against the former Gestapo officer on the grounds that Eichmann was brought to Israel illegally and tried under an invalid law.

Dr. Robert Servatius, Eichmann's West German Defense counsel, also asked to be allowed to introduce new evidence and to summon new witnesses, including a high official of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government.

Servatius asked the five-judge Supreme Court to summon Dr. Hans Globke, 63, a government councilor in Hitler's Interior Ministry, as an expert witness on the workings of Nazi racial laws.

Eichmann, condemned to the gallows as a major figure in the Nazi slaughter of six million European Jews, claimed during his trial he was only carrying out orders and had pointed a finger at Globke.

Eichmann charged that Globke was directly involved in working out the legal framework for deporting the Jews and confiscating their property—the job he himself was accused of carrying out as chief of the Gestapo's Jewish affairs section. He did not ask during the trial, however, for Globke to be called as a witness.

Adenauer has repeatedly defended Globke, who claimed that while serving in the Hitler regime he saved Jews' lives even at the risk of his own.

Eichmann, 56, appeared rested after three months spent in solitary confinement since the special three-judge tribunal condemned him to death last December.

The courtroom was packed with 400 spectators, many of whom suffered personally from the Nazi persecution of Jews. Eichmann avoided looking in their direction.

The defense counsel charged that Eichmann, who was captured by secret Israeli agents in 1960 while hiding in Argentina under an assumed name, was illegally brought to Israel for trial.

"The state is the kidnaper in this case," Servatius declared. "The appellant cannot ask for his rights before a court of the state which kidnaped him."

In addition to Globke, the defense sought permission to call as witnesses two Israeli Airline officials—U.S.-born pilot Zvi Tohar and former operations manager Jack Shimony—who allegedly took part in bringing Eichmann from Argentina. The trial court had rejected a defense request to summon them.

The hearing of the appeal is expected to take a week. The high court then will retire, probably for a month, to consider its ruling.

Program To Be Given On Boy Scout Ranch

A public program on the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico will be presented tonight at 7:30 at the Trinity United Presbyterian Church.

Movies will be screened and a resume given of activities at the ranch. Members of the Columbiana Boy Scout Council will be in charge.

Robert Gray, Cherokee District executive, said the meeting is open to anyone, regardless of whether or not they are connected with scouting.

Nine district scouts already have registered to attend the encampment at Philmont in July. Bill Rayburn, district camping chairman, will serve as leader.

There are 11 vacancies.

DiSalle Decrees Reorganization Of Liquor Staff

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Emergency" reorganization of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control is in effect, its permanence to be decided within 60 days.

A proclamation by Gov. Michael V. DiSalle Wednesday made the new set-up effective at once, but it is subject to formalization by the secretary of state and to a public hearing on the proposed changes.

The reorganization makes Ivan W. Smith, heretofore enforcement chief for the department, a deputy director and automatically in line for the top post should Director George R. Dick leave.

The former post of assistant liquor director is abolished and two deputy directors designated. Smith's new title is deputy director in charge of control, while E. Norris Ecker becomes director in charge of merchandising. The control chief assumes the department director's post in any case of vacancy.

Britain Cuts Bank Rate To 5 Per Cent

LONDON (AP) — Britain cut the official bank rate again today, lowering it half a per cent to 5 per cent.

"This move," said a Bank of England spokesman, "is a reflection of the continued strength of sterling."

The bank rate determines the interest charges on loans throughout the country and the sterling bloc. It last was lowered March 8 by half a per cent.

This was the fourth reduction since the government boosted the rate from 5 to 7 per cent during a financial crisis last July.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Self-Tutoring Can Improve Spelling

Among the greatest annoyances to the teacher in high school and college is the large number of students, some of them earning superior grades, whose written papers have many misspelled words. If the teacher marks these misspelled words, they look discouraging to whom they are returned. Why so many teachers are so easy with these poor spellers is hard to understand. And what about the indifference to poor spelling in written work by teachers who had these students in the grades?

Dr. Garry Meyers

IF TEACHERS IN high school and college wished to help these students they might require them to enter a special course to bring up their spelling. They might, however, prevail on some of these miserable spellers to "tutor" themselves in the following way:

Record the misspelled words on returned papers in a special notebook. Then strive to work on these words half an hour or so daily, so as to master their spelling.

Chances are that the average poor speller in college doesn't have trouble with more than a few hundred words, all of which he could, with a planned program, learn to spell.

A teachers' college lad, a neighbor, dropped in to chat with me recently. I asked him about his spelling. He said he's pretty good at it.

Then he added: "I have a roommate, a senior, who is a terrible speller. Next year he will do practice teaching. If he often misspells words on the blackboard his pupils will ridicule him.

—:—

"WHEN I SUGGESTED my roommate keep and work on a list of words he has misspelled on his papers, he replied, 'That would be a lot of work, for I would have to look up all those words'."

There's the problem. This student always has had unwillingness to drive himself to learn to spell.

You students in high school and college who are worried about your spelling, if you have the stuff of character, might well choose to take yourselves in hand and get out of the class of miserable spellers.

If you ever can muster the resolve and courage to drive yourself toward such achievements you will win a glorious victory for self-regard.

My bulletins, "Home Helps for Poor Spellers" and "Tips for Students," may be had by sending envelope to me in care of The Review.

Army Engineers To Defend River Watershed Fund

CINCINNATI (AP) — A record budget for advancing navigation, flood control and all-around water resources development in the 204,000 - square - mile Ohio River watershed will be defended by Army Engineers before Congress next week.

Brig. Gen. Jackson Graham, Ohio River division engineer, will appear next Tuesday before a closed session of the public works subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, and later in the week before an open session of a similar Senate group.

Declining to indicate the scope of the budget, Gen. Graham said only that it was considerably more than the present record $151.5 million budget under which his division is operating in the 1962 fiscal year ending June 30.

One of 19 proposed new high-level navigation locks and dams on the Ohio River—New Cumberland, 55 miles below Pittsburgh—has been completed; another, at Greenup, Ky., 33 miles below Huntington, W. Va., will be dedicated in July and work on the huge $62 million Markland locks and dam, 61 miles below Cincinnati, is expected to be completed in 1963. Locks at these installations and at the McAlpine project, formerly Lock 41, Louisville, Ky., already are in use.

Canton's Fire, Police Chiefs See 'Chaos' In Cuts

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Canton's fire and police chiefs predict cutbacks ordered by Mayor James H. Lawhun will create "chaotic conditions."

The mayor has ordered 64 city workers dropped from the payroll by April 1, including 27 policemen and 14 firemen. Both Police Chief Frank J. Burnosky and Fire Chief William H. Rosche were critical of the order Wednesday night.

Rosche called the order very unnecessary. He added: "it is corny, paltry and it stinks."

Burnosky said it will hurt Canton's general police protection and largely eliminate special services by the morals, juvenile, detective, accident and training bureaus.

In addition to police and fire, the Parks Department is slated to lost 17 employes, one will be cut from the License-Purchasing Department and five from the Health Department.

Lawhun said the cuts are needed to prevent a $331,000 deficit in the city's general fund for 1962.

Soviet Claims Broad Plan For Defense Shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union claims to be planning an elaborate system of civil defense shelters plus the mass distribution of gas masks and special protective clothing.

These claims, which contrast sharply with Russian charges that the U.S. civil defense program reflects war-mongering, were revealed today in a 406-page translation of an official Soviet document.

Called "Medical and Civil Defense in Total War," the volume was placed on sale by the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services. It was originally published in 1959 by the Byelorussian Ministry of Health, and was written by L. F. Supron and F. P. Zverev.

The book, based on lectures given at a medical institute in Minsk in 1955-58, gives no hint of how much progress has been made in carrying out the various plans.

Federal Judges Meet To Plan Suit Handling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ohio federal judges Benjamin C. Green of Cleveland and Carl A. Weinman of Steubenville were among 25 gathered here today to co-ordinate plans for handling damage suits against electrical manufacturers.

The judges hoped to draw up procedures to speed disposition of an expected 2,000 civil actions against manufacturers convicted last year of price-fixing and bid-rigging.

Boy Driving Without Consent Dies In Crash

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—A 14-year-old boy, who was driving the family car without his parents' consent, was killed early today when the auto crashed into a bridge on Parkman road about a mile and a half north of Windham.

The victim was identified by the Portage County Sheriff's Office as James W. Adamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Adamson, of Route 1 Windham.

Killed In Collision

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Lily M. Moore, 76, was killed Wednesday when her auto and another collided at an intersection west of here.

NLRB Gets Complaint In Move To Fire 400

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Standard Ultramarine & Color Co.'s threats to fire 400 strikers if they fail to report for work by Saturday have brought a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board.

Harry Drenner of Charleston, District 3 director of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-CIO), said the complaint was mailed to the NLRB in Cincinnati. He said the union seeks an injunction to require Standard to retract publicly letters the firm announced it had sent to the workers Monday. The strike has been on since Nov. 10.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Self-Tutoring Can Improve Spelling

Among the greatest annoyances to the teacher in high school and college is the large number of students, some of them earning superior grades, whose written papers have many mis spelled words. If the teacher marks these mis-spelled words, they look discouraging to whom they are returned. Why so many teachers are so easy with these poor spellers is hard to understand. And what about the indifference to poor spelling in written work by teachers who had these students in the grades?

IF TEACHERS IN high school and college wished to help these students they might require them to enter a special course to bring up their spelling. They might, however, prevail on some of these miserable spellers to "tutor" themselves in the following way:

Record the misspelled words on returned papers in a special notebook. Then strive to work on these words half an hour or so daily, so as to master their spelling.

Chances are that the average poor speller in college doesn't have trouble with more than a few hundred words, all of which he could, with a planned program, learn to spell.

A teachers' college lad, a neighbor, dropped in to chat with me recently. I asked him about his spelling. He said he's pretty good at it.

Then he added: "I have a roommate, a senior, who is a terrible speller. Next year he will do practice teaching. If he often misspells words on the blackboard his pupils will ridicule him.

—:—

"WHEN I SUGGESTED my roommate keep and work on a list of words he has misspelled on his papers, he replied, 'That would be a lot of work, for I would have to look up all those words'."

There's the problem. This student always has had unwillingness to drive himself to learn to spell.

You students in high school and college who are worried about your spelling, if you have the stuff of character, might well choose to take yourselves in hand and get out of the class of miserable spellers.

If you ever can muster the resolve and courage to drive yourself toward such achievements you will win a glorious victory for self-regard.

My bulletins, "Home Helps for Poor Spellers" and "Tips for Students," may be had by sending envelope to me in care of The Review.

Army Engineers To Defend River Watershed Fund

CINCINNATI (AP) — A record budget for advancing navigation, flood control and all-around water resources development in the 204,000 - square - mile Ohio River watershed will be defended by Army Engineers before Congress next week.

Brig. Gen. Jackson Graham, Ohio River division engineer, will appear next Tuesday before a closed session of the public works subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, and later in the week before an open session of a similar Senate group.

Declining to indicate the scope of the budget, Gen. Graham said only that it was considerably more than the present record $151.5 million budget under which his division is operating in the 1962 fiscal year ending June 30.

One of 19 proposed new high-level navigation locks and dams on the Ohio River—New Cumberland, 55 miles below Pittsburgh—has been completed; another, at Greenup, Ky., 33 miles below Huntington, W. Va., will be dedicated in July and work on the huge $82 million Markland locks and dam, 61 miles below Cincinnati, is expected to be completed in 1963. Locks at these installations and at the McAlpine project, formerly Lock 41, Louisville, Ky., already are in use.

Canton's Fire, Police Chiefs See 'Chaos' In Cuts

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Canton's fire and police chiefs predict cutbacks ordered by Mayor James H. Lawhun will create "chaotic conditions."

The mayor has ordered 64 city workers dropped from the payroll by April 1, including 27 policemen and 14 firemen. Both Police Chief Frank J. Burnosky and Fire Chief William H. Rosche were critical of the order Wednesday night.

Rosche called the order very unnecessary. He added: "it is corny, paltry and it stinks."

Burnosky said it will hurt Canton's general police protection and largely eliminate special services by the morals, juvenile, detective, accident and training bureaus.

In addition to police and fire, the Parks Department is slated to lost 17 employes, one will be cut from the License-Purchasing Department and five from the Health Department.

Lawhun said the cuts are needed to prevent a $331,000 deficit in the city's general fund for 1962.

Soviet Claims Broad Plan For Defense Shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union claims to be planning an elaborate system of civil defense shelters plus the mass distribution of gas masks and special protective clothing.

These claims, which contrast sharply with Russian charges that the U.S. civil defense program reflects war-mongering, were revealed today in a 406-page translation of an official Soviet document.

Called "Medical and Civil Defense in Total War," the volume was placed on sale by the Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services. It was originally published in 1959 by the Byelorussian Ministry of Health, and was written by L. F. Supron and F. P. Zverev.

The book, based on lectures given at a medical institute in Minsk in 1955-58, gives no hint of how much progress has been made in carrying out the various plans.

Federal Judges Meet To Plan Suit Handling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ohio federal judges Benjamin C. Green of Cleveland and Carl A. Weinman of Steubenville were among 25 gathered here today to co-ordinate plans for handling damage suits against electrical manufacturers.

The judges hoped to draw up procedures to speed disposition of an expected 2,000 civil actions against manufacturers convicted last year of price-fixing and bid-rigging.

Boy Driving Without Consent Dies In Crash

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP)—A 14-year-old boy, who was driving the family car without his parents' consent, was killed early today when the auto crashed into a bridge on Parkman road about a mile and a half north of Windham.

The victim was identified by the Portage County Sheriff's Office as James W. Adamson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Adamson, of Route 1 Windham.

Killed In Collision

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Lily M. Moore, 76, was killed Wednesday when her auto and another collided at an intersection west of here.

NLRB Gets Complaint In Move To Fire 400

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Standard Ultramarine & Color Co.'s threats to fire 400 strikers if they fail to report for work by Saturday have brought a complaint to the National Labor Relations Board.

Harry Drenner of Charleston, District 3 director of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (AFL-CIO), said the complaint was mailed to the NLRB in Cincinnati. He said the union seeks an injunction to require Standard to retract publicly letters the firm announced it had sent to the workers Monday. The strike has been on since Nov. 10.

Brown Names Laskey To Ohio Election Staff

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—David C. Laskey, 29, has been appointed by Secretary of State Ted W. Brown to succeed Mary Jo Grotenrath as a member of his election staff.

Prices on Mercury Outboard Motors will not be increased for the approaching 1962 boating season HOWARD HINTON of HINTON MARINE has announced.
The statement by the local Mercury dealer came in answer to the many inquiries following price increases as high as $55 by Mercury's major competitors, Johnson and Evinrude the other 2 leading brands.
Commenting on the 1962 Pricing decision Mr. Hinton said, "We believe the rebounding marine industry needs not only quality products but also pricing that meets buyers budgets during any period of National Economic recovery.

Junior Editors Quiz on FIRE

QUESTION: What makes a flame go out when you blow on it?

ANSWER: When you blow on a small flame, such as a match, you are suffocating it. Fire, like man, needs oxygen in order to survive. When you blow on the flame you are blowing carbon dioxide at it—your respiratory system has already removed the oxygen from the air you inhaled. With all of this carbon dioxide shot straight into it, the flame dies. Certain fire extinguishers are based upon this principle. There are some that simply shoot great amounts of carbon dioxide into the flame. Others spread thick layers of foam over the material that is burning. This cuts off the fire's oxygen. You have probably heard of quick-thinking rescuers wrapping a burning person in a heavy blanket or a rug. The thick material often cuts off the fire's supply of oxygen and the fire is extinguished. It is not very wise to depend upon blowing out a flame if the flame is much larger than that on a candle. If you blow on a much larger flame, it will do no good at all and will probably encourage the flame to grow still larger.

FOR YOU TO DO: There are many different types of fire extinguishers. Find out what type is in your school. See how many ways you can learn of putting out small fires when there is no extinguisher handy.

Richard Neal Smith of Norton, Kan., wins $10 for this question. Send your question on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review.
